MOSCOW, July 25.—Russian forces, thundering across central Poland with electrifying speed, were reported officially only 56 miles from Warsaw today as a result of the capture of the rail junction of Lukow, lying east southeast of the Polish capital on the route to Brest-Litovsk.

Bypass Cities

(German reports said the Russians were within 50 miles of Warsaw and had bypassed Brest-Litovsk and Lwow. Absie the American broadcasting station in Europe, reported Russian airmen flying ahead of ground forces in the direction of Warsaw, are dropping leaflets saying, "Rokossovsky is coming!")

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's First White Russian army captured not only Lukow, but the much larger junction city of Lublin, 88 miles south southeast of Warsaw. Simultaneously, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukrainian army crossed the San river, a tributary of the Wisla (Vistula), at several points in a drive aimed at Kracow, Poland's second largest city.

A special Soviet announcement revealed that in the first month of the "win-the-war" summer offensive four Russian armies had liquidated 539,480 enemy troops, at least 381,000 of whom were killed. Of 158,480 taken prisoner, 21 were generals.

In addition, the Russians destroyed 631 German planes, 2,735 and self-propelled guns, 8,702 guns of various caliber, 5,695 mortars, 23,-

Milk goes to war on many fronts is the latest report. No food has a more important place in our wartime supply than milk and its products. In many ways, the dewey-eyed dairy cow is our most important farm animal. America's milk industry with its more than 26 million cows, millions of dairy farmers, milk distributors and processors join in helping the war to the limit. Milk and dairy products are giving valuable aid to our armed forces and the United Nations. U. S. fighters receive fresh milk daily wherever possible and other dairy foods are in the ration. Milk in war plants is one of the most popular drinks. Between-meals milk is served in war plants which means better general health, fewer absences, sustained energy, greater accuracy, less fatigue, fewer accidents and more cooperation. Milk is most important not only in the diet of babies and children, but grown-ups as well.

Call Red Marshal "Greatest General"

By CAPT. JOHN H. CRAIGE
(Written Especially for U. N. S.)

The sensational advances of the Red army, now pounding Nazi forces to pieces all along the 1,000-mile Russian-German front, highlight the colorful career of Marshal Alexander Mikhailovitch Vasilevsky, Premier Joseph Stalin's new and youthful chief of the Soviets' Stavka, Russian name for the great general staff of the Red army.

Vasilevsky has been chief of staff now for nearly two years, but such is the Soviet passion for anonymity that he is known hardly at all outside Moscow.

No Publicity

Despite the lack of international publicity that attended his rise, Russia's new chief of staff is regarded in Moscow and in Allied military circles as a military genius of the first water, perhaps Russia's greatest general of all time. At the time he took over, probably August or September 1942, Russia's military prospects were at their lowest ebb. Leningrad, the Soviet's second city was closely besieged. German gunners were entrenched almost within sight of Moscow. Nazi armies had overrun the Ukraine and were thundering at the defenses of Stalingrad.

Vasilevsky got his big chance because of the sudden illness in 1942 of Marshal Boris Shaposhnikov, legendary Soviet military figure and former brilliant Czarist Russian officer, who preceded him.

Vasilevsky's first job in which he gained distinction in a big way was the breaking of the siege of Stalingrad. At Premier Stalin's

ROME, July 25.—Advanced spearheads of American armored units of the Fifth Army in Italy advanced to within 10 miles of the city of Florence today.

The Yanks slogged forward toward Florence along several roads converging on the city and also moved across high ground between the roadways.

Armored forces, followed by infantry, which gained positions closest to Florence moved up northeastward on the Poggibonsi-Florence road.

Farther to the west American units continued to consolidate positions along the Arno river, clearing all German resistance from the south bank of the waterway from the Ligurian sea coast to within 18 miles of Florence.

The city of Pisa still remained only partially occupied by the Yanks. The Germans, from natural dominating terrain in positions on Monte Pisano, hurled shells into the southern sections of Pisa which

Chinese Strive To Break Jap Lines Around Hengyang

CHUNGKING, July 25.—(INS)—Chinese relief forces strove desperately today to crack through Japanese lines surrounding the key railway town of Hengyang in Southern Hunan Province in an effort to aid the besieged Chinese garrison.

Fighting is under way east and north of the city, as well as to the southwest, where the Japs have launched a strong counter-attack.

Chinese and American air forces operating in support of the ground troops pounded enemy positions outside Hengyang throughout yesterday.

U. S. 14th Air Force planes carried out two attacks, while two others were executed by the Chinese-American composite wing. The city's airfield and railyards were bombed and strafed.

Northwest of Hengyang a Chinese column was forced to fall back from Tsingyun, which lies on the banks of the North river running west of the vital Canton-Hankow railway.

PEARL HARBOR, July 25.—Japanese forces on Guam's Orote peninsula were isolated today from the main body on the island, cut off from escape or reinforcement by a wall of steel erected at the base of the peninsula by American invasion troops.

The strategic arm of land, which stands at the southern entrance to Port Apra and contains Guam's largest airfield, was severed Sunday by swift-moving forces of the first provisional marine brigade and the seventy-seventh army infantry division.

Success of the drive to pinch off the Nips on Orote was announced by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a communique that also disclosed the enemy was suffering heavy casualties but still offering stiff resistance.

Reports Fresh Gains

In a later, supplemental communique Nimitz reported fresh gains by veteran assault forces of the Second and Fourth division marines on Tinian Island, directly south of conquered Saipan.

After twenty-four hours of fighting on newly-invaded Tinian, it was announced, the marines secured a two and one-half mile beachhead and drove nearly a mile inland to surround the Tinian airdrome.

With Jap opposition confined largely to machine gun and rifle fire, the Tinian invaders were sustaining only light casualties.

LONDON, July 25.—Giant RAF Lancaster bombers, backed by swarms of Allied fighters, pounded Nazi robot launching sites in northern France and one area "connected with threatened rocket attacks" early today after heavy night blows were dealt key enemy objectives in Germany and France.

An Air Ministry communique telling of the assaults against V-1 installations was preceded by an official bulletin revealing that Stuttgart was hit by 30,000 incendiaries and many tons of high explosives during a 15-minute saturation attack last night.

Berlin and objectives in France also were blasted, but Stuttgart bore the brunt of the assault, the Air Ministry announced.

Attempt To Escape From New Guinea Trap And Suffer Heavy Losses

HELD NEAR WEWAK FOR THREE MONTHS

By JACK MAHON
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR'S HQ., New Guinea, July 25—Three new "desperation" attacks by trapped forces of the Japanese 18th army against American positions east of Aitape were hurled back with heavy losses to the enemy, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The communique said that the Japs' futile attempts to force a crossing of the Driniumor river were launched Saturday night and continued into Sunday morning.

Driving straight into well-prepared Yank positions, the Japs were riddled by artillery fire and fell back into the jungles and swamps in the direction of Wewak, where they have been pinned down for more than three months, with the Australians at their backs.

The Japs combined their frontal assaults with a flanking maneuver from the south, but only a few isolated detachments managed to cross the shallow, 160-yard wide Driniumor and these are being wiped out by American counter-attacks.

Gen. MacArthur's communique declared that the trapped remnants of the enemy's 18th army, estimated at less than 40,000 men, show "an apparent inability to deliver a concentrated effort with his combined forces." The communique added:

"His piece meal attacks result in localized combat in which he is rapidly dissipating his strength.

"In his rear, every bivouac and supply point has been pounded by air bombardment and his carrier lines, absorbing the bulk of his service elements, have been strafed incessantly."

Japanese prisoners were reported to have given a vivid picture of collapsing communications all the

Pope Is Hoping For Peace Talks

Such Proposals Must Come From German Government To Vatican

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(INS)—High church officials said today that Pope Pius was desirous of entertaining proposals to bring the war to an end.

It was pointed out, however, that such proposals must be initiated formally by one of the belligerent governments. And since the United Nations are known not to have made any such advances, the move must come from the German ambassador to the Holy See, Baron Ernst von Weizsacker.

Conferred Saturday

Weizsacker was reported to have conferred on Saturday with two assistant secretaries of the state of the Vatican.

It was acknowledged by church officials in Washington that the Pope could make informal overtures, indicating his readiness to receive a formal proposal from a belligerent country. But by the terms of the Concordat of 1929, the Vatican agreed to act as intermediary in international affairs only at the request of the interested parties.

Southern Germany In Revolt Throes

LONDON, July 25—(INS)—Fighting is sweeping through areas of southern Germany where army units have rebelled, the London News of the World reported tonight in a Madrid dispatch.

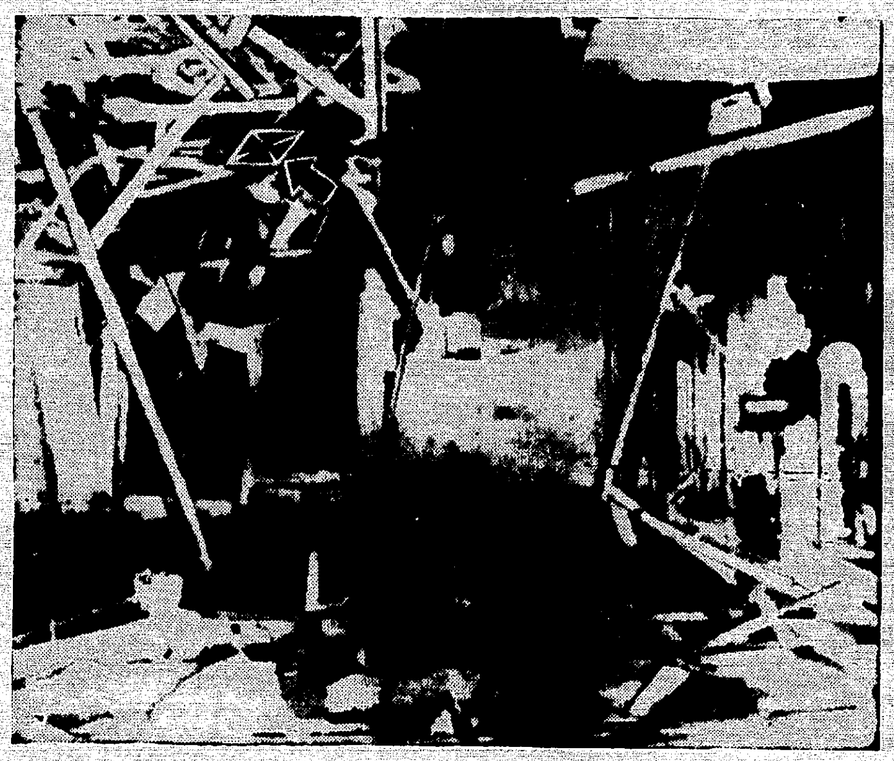

Simultaneously, Reuter's dispatch from Zurich said that according to foreign diplomatic sources the commanding officers at Munich, Stuttgart, Schweinfurt, Bremen, Linz "and possibly elsewhere" mutinied against the Nazis. Many arrests and "dramatic incidents" reportedly followed immediately.

Identities of the crewmen have not been released.

Stuttgart Gets Load Of Bombs

German Armament Center Bears Brunt Of Tremendous Aerial Assault

By JOSEPH THOMAS
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 25.—Formidable Allied aerial squadrons soared out across the Straits of Dover by daylight, today to carry forward the renewed sky offensive and to follow up shattering night assaults by the Royal Air Force against Stuttgart, Berlin and other objectives in France.

Stuttgart, large German armaments center in the southwestern Reich, bore the brunt of the large-scale RAF assault.

The Air Ministry said that its heavyweight bombers were out in great strength over the Reich and other targets, indicating a force of at least 1,000-bomber strength had taken part.

One formation of the daylight raiders which went out in large number took 20 minutes to cross the English coast. The planes headed through clear skies toward the Dunkirk and Calais areas.

Shortly after heavy explosions were heard emanating from across the channel.

Unofficial estimates were that

Train Crew Nabs German Prisoner

Escaped Nazi Prisoner Had Lived On Berries For Seven Days

OIL CITY, Pa., July 25.—(INS)—A Pennsylvania railroad track crew today was credited with the capture of Heinze Golze, 23-year-old German prisoner of war who escaped from a packing company plant in North East one week ago.

Crew members reported the Nazi was walking along the track with a cut face when he was caught. The crew administered first aid and upon learning their captive could not talk any English, took him to the Oil City jail, where he said he had lived on berries in the western Pennsylvania woods for the seven days of his freedom.

The German prisoner refused to believe the news of revolt within his homeland.

Poles Battle Nazis In Streets Of Lwow

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—Polish citizens of Lwow have risen in revolt against the Germans and street battles are raging in the city, the underground Polish radio reported today.

German forces already have been driven out of three-quarters of Lwow, the broadcast said. Even women and boys are taking part in the street fighting.

Polish underground forces were said to be cooperating openly as regular Polish army units in the Lwow sector.

Shroyer Plans To Free Bridges

Ellwood-Koppel Bridge One In Group Which Would Be Bought By State

HARRISBURG, July 25.—(INS)—The highway department's recommendations to Gov. Edward Martin outlining the commonwealth's $10,000,000 post war toll bridge acquisition program will be submitted this week end, Secretary John U. Shroyer said today.

He said engineers assigned to the program had completed their report on the 10 privately-owned bridges that will be free of tolls under Governor Martin's post-war plans. Negotiations with bridge owners were initiated seven months ago in an attempt to fix fair values.

"After numerous conferences with the engineers and a representative of the attorney general's office, the report is ready and after I have had an opportunity to analyze it I will submit it with my recommendations to Governor Martin, probably this week-end," Shroyer said.

The commonwealth has been negotiating for the purchase of two bridges at Bethlehem, two others at Harrisburg, and one each at Sunbury, Allentown, Charleroi-Monessen, Clarks Ferry, Point Merion and Ellwood City-Koppel.

Russia Disclaims Designs On Poland

LONDON, July 25—(INS)—The Moscow radio today broadcast an official Soviet statement disclaiming any territorial or ideological designs in Poland.

The Soviet government views the entry of the Red army into Poland as entry into a friendly, allied country, the radio said and there is no intention of establishing any Soviet institutions in that nation.

Soviet Russia is claiming no territory belonging to Poland, it was said, and present operations on Polish soil are regarded only as a military necessity.

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Rep. Dewey (R., Ill., an official observer of the United Nations monetary and financial conference, asserted today that congress probably will not approve the agreement reached by the 44 nations on postwar currency stabilization.

Back from the meeting Bretton Woods, N. H., which concluded Sunday, Dewey commented that "I'm almost sure they won't, at least not in its present form."

Not a Delegate

Dewey, who was not a delegate, said he was sent to the conference as an observer by the house committee on postwar economic policy and planning, of which he is a member. The American delegation was composed of four members of congress, two Republicans and two Democrats and a Chicago banker.

"I think the conference was very constructive," commented Dewey.

British Ruler Flies To Italy

British Bomber Lands King George VI In Shadow Of Mount Vesuvius

WITH THE KING'S PARTY IN ITALY, July 25.—(INS)—King George VI of Britain was in Italy today for a tour of the Allied Fifth and Eighth army battlefronts. It is the first visit to Italy since 1930 for the British monarch who arrived Sunday.

The king arrived at an airport under the shadow of Mount Versuvius aboard a British bomber after a three-hour stopover in North Africa. He plans to visit units of the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force as well as dominion units and other Allied forces.

In Good Health

It was the British monarch's first visit to the Mediterranean theatre since his trip to North Africa last year. He appeared to be in exceptionally good health and posed for photographers patiently and cooperatively.

The king was driven through the bomb-pocked streets of Naples, where he was seen by many British tommies who later commented on seeing the ruler of the empire riding right down main street.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 25.—American British armies in France took up the offensive again today against the Germans at both ends of the Normandy battle front and smashed forward into the enemy ranks behind powerful blows by Allied aerial armada.

The assault by the American First Army under command of Lieut. Gen. Homer N. Bradley was described in a front dispatch from International News Service war correspondent Clark Lee as a coordinated attack which was preceded by a heavy bombardment by heavy, medium and light bombers.

Near St. Lo

(The German high command communique broadcast by Berlin said the American offensive blows fell northwest of St. Lo and southwest Carentan.)

The British Second Army attacked on a wide front south of Caen, but headquarters said that the new blow is limited in its objectives and should not be interpeted as an onslaught aimed at an immediate break-through of the German lines.

By CHARLES A. SMITH

LONDON, July 25.—The German home front was threatened with a series of stern decrees today in an apparent Nazi effort to gain a stranglehold on all possible revolt forces.

An unidentified announcer speaking meanwhile on a German radio wave length declared that official Nazi statements asserting that the revolt of army officers has been stemmed are lies and said that the bulk of the opposition forces still is intact.

The Algiers radio broadcast Zurich reports to the effect that the Nazi purge being conducted by Heinrich Himmler had reached the Wilhelmstrasse itself. GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR'S HQ., New Guinea, July 25.—Three new "desperation" attacks by trapped forces of the Japanese 18th army against American positions east of Aitape were hurled back with heavy losses to the enemy, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The communique said that the Japs' futile attempts to force a crossing of the Driniumor river were launched Saturday night and continued into Sunday morning.

Driving straight into well-prepared Yank positions, the Japs were riddled by artillery fire and fell back into the jungles and swamps in the direction of Wewak, where they have been pinned down for more than three months, with the Australians at their backs.

The Japs combined their frontal assaults with a flanking maneuver from the south, but only a few isolated detachments managed to cross the shallow, 160-yard wide Driniumor and these are being wiped out by American counter-attacks.

Gen. MacArthur's communique declared that the trapped remnants of the enemy's 18th army, estimated at less than 40,000 men, show "an apparent inability to deliver a concentrated effort with his combined forces." The communique added:

"His piece meal attacks result in localized combat in which he is rapidly dissipating his strength.

"In his rear, every bivouac and supply point has been pounded by air bombardment and his carrier lines, absorbing the bulk of his service elements, have been strafed incessantly."

Japanese prisoners were reported to have given "a vivid picture" of collapsing communications all the

Pope Is Hoping For Peace Talks

Such Proposals Must Come From German Government To Vatican

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(INS)—High church officials said today that Pope Pius was desirous of entertaining proposals to bring the war to an end.

It was pointed out, however, that such proposals must be initiated formally by one of the belligerent governments. And since the United Nations are known not to have made any such advances, the move must come from the German ambassador to the Holy See, Baron Ernst von Weizsacker.

Conferred Saturday

Weizsacker was reported to have conferred on Saturday with two assistant secretaries of the state of the Vatican.

It was acknowledged by church officials in Washington that the Pope could make informal overtures, indicating his readiness to receive a formal proposal from a belligerent country. But by the terms of the Concordat of 1929, the Vatican agreed to act as intermediary in international affairs only at the request of the interested parties.

Southern Germany In Revolt Throes

LONDON, July 25—(INS)—Fighting is sweeping through areas of southern Germany where army units have rebelled, the London News of the World reported tonight in a Madrid dispatch.

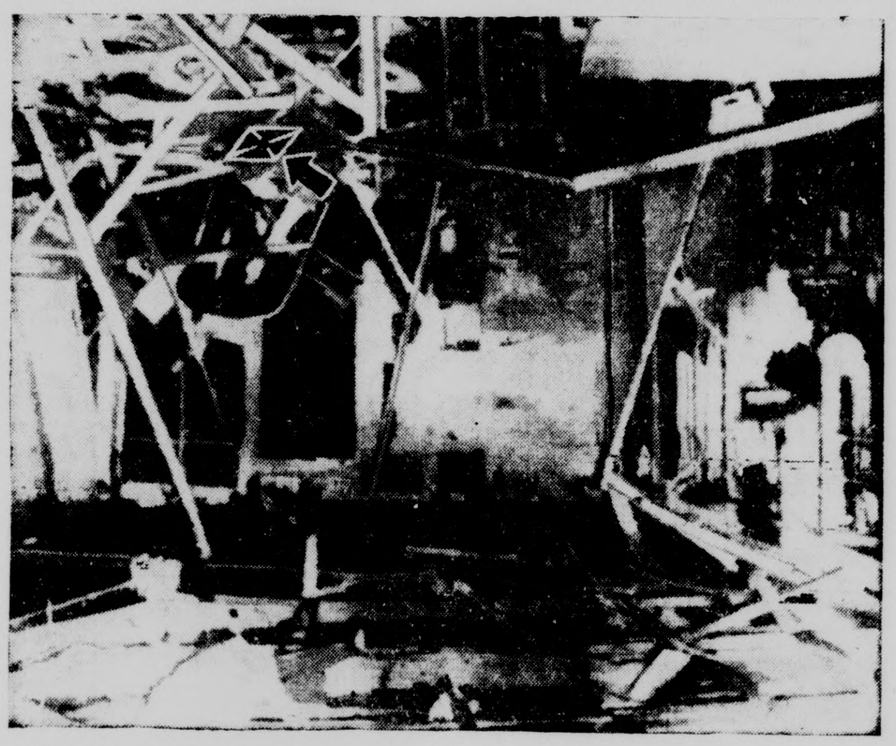

Simultaneously, Reuter's dispatch from Zurich said that according to foreign diplomatic sources the commanding officers at Munich, Stuttgart, Schweinfurt, Bremen, Linz "and possibly elsewhere" mutinied against the Nazis. Many arrests and "dramatic incidents" reportedly followed immediately.

POPE FIELD, N. C., July 25—(INS)—Pope Field officeds said today that virtually all hope of finding the crewmen aboard three C-47 transport planes missing since Friday night off the North Carolina coast had been abandoned.

Identities of the crewmen have not been released.

Stuttgart Gets Load Of Bombs

German Armament Center Bears Brunt Of Tremendous Aerial Assault

By JOSEPH THOMAS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 25.—Formidable Allied aerial squadrons soared out across the Straits of Dover by daylight today to carry forward the renewed sky offensive and to follow up shattering night assaults by the Royal Air Force against Stuttgart, Berlin and other objectives in France.

Stuttgart, large German armaments center in the southwestern Reich, bore the brunt of the large-scale RAF assault.

The Air Ministry said that its heavyweight bombers were out in great strength over the Reich and other targets, indicating a force of at least 1,000-bomber strength had taken part.

One formation of the daylight raiders which went out in large number took 20 minutes to cross the English coast. The planes headed through clear skies toward the Dunkirk and Calais areas.

Shortly after heavy explosions were heard emanating from across the channel.

Unofficial estimates were that

Train Crew Nabs German Prisoner

Escaped Nazi Prisoner Had Lived On Berries For Seven Days

OIL CITY, Pa., July 25.—(INS)—A Pennsylvania railroad track crew today was credited with the capture of Heinze Golze, 23-year-old German prisoner of war who escaped from a packing company plant in North East one week ago.

Crew members reported the Nazi was walking along the track with a cut face when he was caught. The crew administered first aid and upon learning their captive could not talk any English, took him to the Oil City jail, where he said he had lived on berries in the western Pennsylvania woods for the seven days of his freedom.

The German prisoner refused to believe the news of revolt within his homeland.

Poles Battle Nazis In Streets Of Lwow

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—Polish citizens of Lwow have risen in revolt against the Germans and street battles are raging in the city, the underground Polish radio reported today.

German forces already have been driven out of three-quarters of Lwow, the broadcast said. Even women and boys are taking part in the street fighting.

Polish underground forces were said to be coperating openly as regular Polish army units in the Lwow sector.

Shroyer Plans To Free Bridges

Ellwood-Koppel Bridge One In Group Which Would Be Bought By State

HARRISBURG, July 25.—(INS)—The highway department's recommendations to Gov. Edward Martin outlining the commonwealth's $10,000,000 post war toll bridge acquisition program will be submitted "this week end," Secretary John U. Shroyer said today.

He said engineers assigned to the program had completed their report on the 10 privately-owned bridges that will be free of tolls under Governor Martin's post-war plans. Negotiations with bridge owners were initiated seven months ago in an attempt to fix fair values.

"After numerous conferences with the engineers and a representative of the attorney general's office, the report is ready and after I have had an opportunity to analyze it I will submit it with my recommendations to Governor Martin, probably this week-end," Shroyer said.

The commonwealth has been negotiating for the purchase of two bridges at Bethlehem, two others at Harrisburg, and one each at Sunbury, Allentown, Charleroi-Monessen, Clarks Ferry, Point Merion and Ellwood City-Koppel.

Russia Disclaims Designs On Poland

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—The Moscow radio today broadcast an official Soviet statement disclaiming any territorial or ideological designs in Poland.

The Soviet government views the entry of the Red army into Poland as entry into a friendly, allied country, the radio said and there is no intention of establishing any Soviet institutions in that nation.

Soviet Russia is claiming no territory belonging to Poland, it was said, and present operations on Polish soil are regarded only as a military necessity.

Shenango Firemen Called Out Sunday

Congressman Dewey Doubts Congress Will Approve Stabilization Plan

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Rep. Dewey (R-Ill.), an official observer of the United Nations monetary and financial conference, asserted today that congress probably will not approve the agreement reached by the 44 nations on postwar currency stabilization.

Back from the meeting Bretton Woods, N. H., which concluded Sunday, Dewey commented that "I'm almost sure they won't, at least not in its present form."

Not a Delegate

Dewey, who was not a delegate, said he was sent to the conference as an observer by the house committee on postwar economic policy and planning, of which he is a member. The American delegation was composed of four members of congress, two Republicans and two Democrats and a Chicago banker.

"I think the conference was very constructive," commented Dewey.

British Ruler Flies To Italy

British Bomber Lands King George VI In Shadow Of Mount Vesuvius

WITH THE KING'S PARTY IN ITALY, July 25.—(INS)—King George VI of Britain was in Italy today for a tour of the Allied Fifth and Eighth army battlefronts. It is the first visit to Italy since 1930 for the British monarch who arrived Sunday.

The king arrived at an airport under the shadow of Mount Versuvius aboard a British bomber after a three-hour stopover in North Africa. He plans to visit units of the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force as well as dominion units and other Allied forces.

In Good Health

It was the British monarch's first visit to the Mediterranean theatre since his trip to North Africa last year. He appeared to be in exceptionally good health and posed for photographers patiently and cooperatively.

The king was driven through the bomb-pocked streets of Naples, where he was seen by many British tommies who later commented on seeing the ruler of the empire "riding right down main street".

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 25.—American British armies in France took up the offensive again today against the Germans at both ends of the Normandy battle front and smashed forward into the enemy ranks behind powerful blows by Allied aerial armada.

The assault by the American First Army under command of Lieut. Gen. Homer N. Bradley was described in a front dispatch from International News Service war correspondent Clark Lee as a coordinated attack which was preceded by a heavy bombardment by heavy, medium and light bombers.

Near St. Lo

(The German high command communique broadcast by Berlin said the American offensive blows fell northwest of St. Lo and southwest Carentan.)

The British Second Army attacked on a wide front south of Caen, but headquarters said that the new blow is limited in its objectives and should not be interpeted as an onslaught aimed at an immediate break-through of the German lines.

Stern Decrees Facing Germans

Himmler Continues Purge Of Officers Thought Disloyal To Hitler

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 25.—The German home front was threatened with a series of stern decrees today in an apparent Nazi effort to gain a stranglehold on all possible revolt forces.

An unidentified announcer speaking meanwhile on a German radio wave length declared that official Nazi statements asserting that the revolt of army officers has been stemmed are lies and said that the bulk of the opposition forces still is intact.

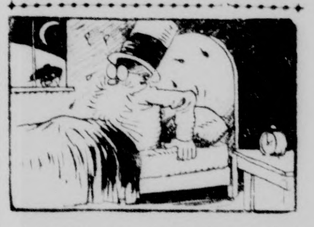

Reaches Headquarters

The Algiers radio broadcast Zurich reports to the effect that the Nazi purge being conducted by Heinrich Himmler had reached the Wilhelmstrasse itself. According to the accounts broadcast by the Algiers transmitter numerous peace demonstrations were reported in the industrial Ruhr valley and south Germany.

Marines Are Home From Pacific War

Famous First Division Rolls Into Western Pennsylvania Monday

PITTSBURGH, July 25.—(INS)—Many Western Pennsylvania parents today were filled with joy after meeting the 19-coach troop train from San Diego, Cal., that had been dropping off a marine or marines who never is passed through or near a home town.

And the boys were just as glad to be home again.

They wanted hot showers, rest and beers, but most of all the heroes of the famed First Marine Division—the outfit which invaded Guadalcanal and first turned back the Japs in the Pacific—wanted to be where they landed last night—HOME.

Eat and Sleep

The entire division was looking forward, it seemed, to spending most of their 30-day furloughs sleeping and eating and sleeping some more.

Sgt. Lloyd E. Crusan of Belle Vernon, won the Navy Cross at Cape Gloucester, but all he wanted to talk about was getting home to his family.

His men told his story:

"Sgt. Crusan was ordered to attack the Japs across a river but the detail was pinned down by heavy machine gun fire.

"Crusan waded across alone, and, with a tommy-gun held back the Japs until his men got across." Crusan has a Jap flag he captured during the encounter.

Each man, when asked about his story, pointed instead to a neighbor, and suggested:

"He's A Hero"

"Talk to him. He's a hero."

The whole train hooted and yelled when they caught sight of Lt. Mitchell Paige, the West Mifflin Congressional Medal of Honor winner, who commanded many of them.

To a man, they agreed:

"There's a real hero."

Cpl. Eugene R. Casey, of Hazelwood, and Cpl. Harold F. Wood, Oil City, had but one big problem:

"Taking a good hot bath."

Cpl. Lewis Lose, Bellefonte, Pa., had trouble adjusting his uniform in his eagerness to leave the train. His main objective:

"I want to get home."

Get Souvenirs

Four Johnstown vets were with the group, one with a Jap pistol obtained on Cape Gloucester. They were Pfc. James Balog, owner of the pistol; Cpl. Kenneth Berkstresser, Sgt. Alfons Visnefsky and Pfc. William Hoover, who hastened to explain that in spite of his name he was a Democrat.

In spite of the gaiety of the crowds on the platform in Pittsburgh, there were a few saddened when they found that their son, brother or sweetheart was not among the group.

One elderly couple stopped each marine and asked anxiously of each one whether their son had been on the train. Nobody had seen him.

CALL RED MARSHAL 'GREATEST GENERAL'

order, he went to the Stalingrad front with Marshals Gregory K. Zukhov and Nikolai N. Voronov, the Soviet's foremost artillery expert, where they assumed complete control of operations.

Diagnose Weakness

Swiftly the three diagnosed the weakness of the Nazi position, which lay in the fact that the German lines at Stalingrad stuck out 200 miles like a thumb from the protecting knuckles of the fist. The Russian triumvirate struck at the shank of the thumb about the middle of November, cutting completely through it and isolating Nazi Field Marshal Von Paulus' German Sixth Army from supplies and support. Then they turned their attention to the Sixth army in earnest and by early February the entire army group totalling more than 300,000 men was dead or captured.

But the new chief of staff did not rest long on his laurels, plunging immediately into the long overdue task of reorganizing the Red army.

Divides Armies

Prior to that time Soviet military forces had been organized into three great army commands, of the north, center and south, each including approximately 1,500,000 men. Marshal Vasilevsky divided the three huge, unwieldy masses into a total of 12 army sectors, each with its own general, its own staff and its own supply organization.

The results of Vasilevsky's reorganization speak for themselves. In the campaigns of 1943 the flexible new armies battered the Nazis back from more than 500,000 square miles of Russian territory. Today they stand poised on the borders of Germany. Tomorrow they may well be in Berlin.

071 machine guns and 57,152 trucks.

Occupation of Lublin was announced in an order of the day by Marshal Joseph Stalin which called for a 224-gun salute of 20 salvoes in Moscow last night. Seizure of Lukow was revealed by the Soviet communique supplement, which said it was taken by Red army columns advancing northwest of Cholm (Kholm).

Enormous Losses

Soviet units that captured Lublin pushed on nearly 10 miles to the west to take Belzyce, after inflicting what the communique termed "enormous losses" on the enemy in the fighting for Lublin. One unit alone was reported to have wiped out 1,400 German officers and men and captured more than 600 as ones.

At least 3,200 Nazis were slain in yesterday's battles, while more than 1,200 were taken prisoner.

Gen. Konev's forces, moving swiftly beyond the outflanking rail junction city of Lwow, third largest in Poland, were credited with taking 1,500 enemy prisoners and captured 40 tanks, 50 guns and 30 armored carriers.

They captured the town of Jaworow, three district centers of Drohobycz province and severed the railway and highways running westward from Lwow to Przemysl, 50 miles distant. The German garrison at the town of Kolkiew was surrounded and wiped out in a fierce battle in this region.

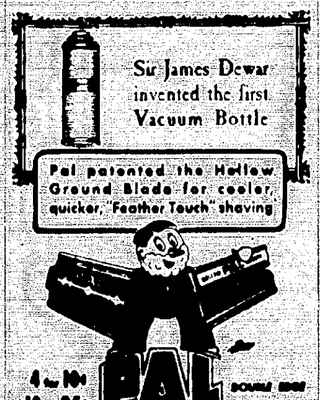

Three-Point Drive

Northeast of Warsaw three Soviet columns are converging on the German bastion of Bialystok, northernmost anchor of the crumbling Nazi defense lines in Poland.

All told, the Red army liberated more than 1,370 towns and villages yesterday in its unchecked advance along the 800-mile battlefront stretching from Latvia to Lwow. In addition, 172 German tanks were crippled or destroyed in Monday's fighting, while 36 planes were shot down in aerial combat or by anti-aircraft fire, the communique disclosed.

MAY NOT APPROVE FINANCIAL PLAN

"to the extent that members representing 44 nations could discuss world requirements for postwar rehabilitation, but I'm not equally convinced that the plans proposed will probe acceptable to the American people, as represented by congress.

"I'm almost sure they won't. I have doubts as to congressional approval of the agreement, as it exists now. However, it provides a basis for study."

Reach Agreement

The conference reached agreements on an $8,800,000,000 national monetary fund for stabilizing postwar currencies and a $9,100,000,000 world bank for international reconstruction. The agreement is subject to ratification by congress and the executive and legislative bodies of the other participating united and associated nations.

"I don't believe time could be found for the consideration of so important a program," he explained, "and it will probably have to await the new congress, which convenes in January."

Doubt of congressional approval had earlier been expressed by Senator Taft (R) Ohio.

war", warned there were a number of indications that a great number of new decrees were forthcoming.

Some of the decrees, DNB said, would cut deep into the everyday life of the Germans.

"Everything not essential to life itself must be rooted out," CBS quoted DNB as saying. "We must be ready to throw our very last reserves into the fight."

Turn In Guns

(From Madrid CBS reported dispatches saying a direct result of the Hitler assassination attempt was an order by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler to civilians to turn in hunting guns and pistols immediately. The measure would aid the Nazis should a general revolt break out later.)

The unidentified announcer, who spoke to the German army early today, had a Prussian accent and with a typical impersonal intonation of a German officer, according to Reuter's news agency which recorded the broadcast.

He said that last Wednesday and Thursday were black days for the Nazis and although Hitler and Himmler manager to escape, other trusted lieutenants of the Nazis were felled.

"Hitler and Himmler have both escaped the death they deserve for their crime against the fatherland," he said.

Forces Intact

"With cynical hypocrisy they have told you that our movement was completely destroyed, that the revolt has been nipped in the bud. They are telling lies. The gestapo has found and murdered a few of our men, but the bulk of our forces is still intact."

Then the speaker asserted that the Germans still can win if the Nazis are eliminated.

There were continued reports which could not be confirmed that heads of opposition forces were falling constantly as Himmler wielded the axe to crush those against Hitler and Nazi domination. There were widespread reports of dismissals of German generals, frequently the forerunner to execution.

Patrols found bridges across the Arno river between the northern and southern sections of Pisa demolished.

The Germans fought step by step to defend the hill country before Florence and the Gothic defense line just to the north. When forced out of strong positions they strengthened their line by short withdrawals.

Take Strada

Strada, on highway 2, was captured, and Eighth Army forces continued on the move forward against stiff German opposition. They took the high hill of Monte Domini, two miles from the town of Greve.

The communique from headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson said that the Eighth Army north of Arezzo had scored important local gains in high ground to the east of the Arezzo-Bibbiena road. In the valley of the Tiber armored patrols moved to within two miles of San Sepolcro.

On the Adriatic sector, other Eighth Army troops continued to exert pressure on German positions commanding the road running inland from Senigallia and now are threatening the town of Ostra.

Blast Targets

Planes of the Mediterranean Air Force, flying approximately 1,700 sorties, ranged over a wide area to blast targets in Northern Italy, Southern France and Yugoslavia.

Targets of the heavy bombers included two airdromes in the lower Rhone Valley of France, harbor installations at Genoa and a tank repair shop and ball-bearing plants in the Turin area. Troop concentrations in Southern Yugoslavia also were battered.

Planes of the tactical air force concentrated on German communications and military objectives in Northern Italy, in the battle area and in Yugoslavia.

The operations cost seven Allied planes while Six German craft were destroyed.

Following the parade, there will be a "truck show" in front of the V. F. W. hall. Black face comedians are now being procured and it is also likely that not only will there be some monologues but also some up-to-the-minute songs by local purveyors of "It" songs.

Some of the children who have pets in the parade will be interviewed by a radio man who will have his mike along the street and where the actors will put on their show on a truck.

According to reports, children today were busy scrubbing and combing Rover, putting a dash of fingernail polish on roosters' combs and polishing up pigeons. BLACKSNAKES IN CENTER OF CITY

Two, Possibly Mates, Killed At Mill And Washington Streets Early Today

There have been times when persons who have partaken too freely of a Bacchanalian bowl have not only seen pink elephants, three-legged frogs and snakes but those who strolled early this morning past South Mill and East Washington streets had not "had a night out" and therefore when they espied two big blacksnakes, possibly mates, crawling along, they were somewhat excited. In fact, it isn't often that a denizen of the wild takes the liberty of visiting the city in daylight and perturbs the attitude of residents of the city.

Where the snakes came from could not be stated. Some believe they may have basked in the clumps of weeds along the Shenango or have fallen from a hay load being hauled through the city.

However, like the moth that plays around the bright lights in a city, the snakes didn't last long when motor vehicles began rumbling their the city and they were soon ground lifeless.

seventy-two hours after they stormed ashore at two points north and south of the peninsula, on the western side of the former American possession.

"The southerly force sealed off Orote while the northerly force pressed in inland and southward to shove an expanding arc into interior, where the main strength of the enemy garrison is believed concentrated.

Lines Extended

American lines to the south as of 6 p. m. Sunday extended from the inner reaches of Apra harbor to a point opposite Anae Island with the greatest depth of advance approximately 5,000 yards.

In the northern sector, marines held lines extending inland up to 2,900 yards between the Sasa river mouth and Adelup point.

The invaders, supported by carrier aircraft and constant naval bombardment were taking a heavy toll of Japanese lives.

Admiral Nimitz described the situation on Tinian Island as "well in hand." The American beachhead starting about a mile below the northern tip of the island, extended to a point north of Faibus on San Hilo point.

Whether enemy fortifications on the island have been pounded to pieces by pre-invasion aerial, artillery and navy bombardments or whether they have been withdrawn to a more adaptable defense zone in the interior was not known at the present.

Intense Bombing

One thing is certain—that Tinian's airstrip and other installations received one of the most intense bombardments of the Pacific war, rivaling even that of the terrific softening-up treatment administered to Guam.

Separate from Saipan by a three-mile-wide strait, Tinian has been under incessant artillery and air bombardment for several weeks and navy surface ships patrolling close off shore have been smashing targets out of range of land artillery battles on Saipan.

Admiral Nimitz' latest communique announced a new attack on Shimushu Island in the northern Kuriles, the most northerly territory of the Japanese homeland.

A neutralizing strike to prevent enemy air support from reaching Guam was struck by carrier aircraft at Rota Island, about midway between Saipan and Guam, on Sunday. Specific targets were the enemy airdrome and adjacent installations.

Fifteen Cars Are Derailed On Main Line Tracks Near Coverts Station During Night

Fifteen cars were derailed on a freight train on the P. and L. E. railroad, on the main line tracks between Edenburg and New Castle, near Coverts Station at an early hour this morning, tying up the tracks for several hours, and forcing main line traffic to be routed over the B. and O. railroad between New Castle and Youngstown.

Local officials were unable to give any information on the incident, it was stated. As far as could be learned, no person was injured. By 10 o'clock this morning, the damage had been repaired, and P. and L. E. trains were running over their own tracks.

The chief explained that the older Newsies will be allowed to sell until 12:30 a.m. but the younger boys must be off the streets at 11 p.m.

"Are you doing anything in regards to the girls being out late", a reporter asked.

"Oh, yes, Police-Woman Kathryn Dukes is enforcing the curfew ordinance. She does not take the girls to police headquarters but contacts their parents," the chief stated.

Change Is Expected In Japs' Strategy

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, predicted today that the collapse of the Tojo cabinet in Japan will bring about a change of Japanese war strategy—either offensively or defensively.

King and Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., commander of the third U. S. fleet in the Pacific, were present at Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal's weekly news conference.

"Obviously the Tojo cabinet did not fall unless there was dissatisfaction with the way the Japanese high command was waging war," King said. "But there is no aid and comfort to be gained from the composition of the new cabinet. The Japanese will continue to wage war with all the power they possess.

"We can expect some change in their method of waging war, but whether that means they will go on the defensive or become more aggressive remains to be seen."

Marines Are Home From Pacific War

Famous First Division Rolls Into Western Pennsylvania Monday

PITTSBURGH, July 25.—(INS)—Many Western Pennsylvania parents today were filled with joy after meeting the 19-coach troop train from San Diego, Cal., that had been dropping off a marine or marines who never it passed through or near a home town.

And the boys were just as glad to be home again.

They wanted hot showers, rest and beers, but most of all the heroes of the famed First Marine Division the outfit which invaded Guadalcanal and first turned back the Japs in the Pacific—wanted to be where they landed last night—HOME.

Eat and Sleep

The entire division was looking forward, it seemed, to spending most of their 30-day furloughs sleeping and eating and sleeping some more.

Sgt. Lloyd E. Crusan, of Belle Vernon, won the Navy Cross at Cape Gloucester, but all he wanted to talk about was getting home to his family.

His men told his story:

"Sgt. Crusan was ordered to attack the Japs across a river but the detail was pinned down by heavy machine gun fire.

"Crusan waded across alone, and, with a tommy-gun, held back the Japs until his men got across." Crusan has a Jap flag he captured during the encounter.

Each man, when asked about his story, pointed instead to a neighbor, and suggested:

"He's A Hero"

"Talk to him. He's a hero."

The whole train hooted and yelled when they caught sight of Lt. Mitchell Paige, the West Mifflin Congressional Medal of Honor winner, who commanded many of them.

To a man, they agreed:

"There's a real hero."

Cpl. Eugene R. Casey, of Hazelwood, and Cpl. Harold F. Wood, Oil City, had but one big problem:

"Taking a good hot bath."

Cpl. Lewis Lose, Bellefonte, Pa., had trouble adjusting his uniform in his eagerness to leave the train. His main objective:

"I want to get home."

Get Souvenirs

Four Johnstown vets were with the group, one with a Jap pistol obtained on Cape Gloucester. They were Pfc. James Balog, owner of the pistol, Cpl. Kenneth Berkstresser, Sgt. Alfons Vilnefsky and Pfc. William Hoover, who hastened to explain that in spite of his name he was a Democrat.

In spite of the gaiety of the crowds on the platform in Pittsburgh, there were a few saddened when they found that their son, brother or sweetheart was not among the group.

One elderly couple stopped each marine and asked anxiously of each one whether their son had been on the train. Nobody had seen him.

CALL RED MARSHAL 'GREATEST GENERAL'

order, he went to the Stalingrad front with Marshals Gregory K. Zukhov and Nikolai N. Voronov, the Soviet's foremost artillery expert, where they assumed complete control of operations.

Diagnose Weakness

Swiftly the three diagnosed the weakness of the Nazi position, which lay in the fact that the German lines at Stalingrad stuck out 200 miles like a thumb from the protecting knuckles of the fist. The Russian triumvirate struck at the shank of the thumb about the middle of November, cutting completely through it and isolating Nazi Field Marshal Von Paulus' German Sixth Army from supplies and support. Then they turned their attention to the Sixth army in earnest and by early February the entire army group totalling more than 300,000 men was dead or captured.

But the new chief of staff did not rest long on his laurels, plunging immediately into the long overdue task of reorganizing the Red army.

Divides Armies

Prior to that time Soviet military forces had been organized into three great army commands, of the north, center and south, each including approximately 1,500,000 men. Marshal Vasilevsky divided the three huge, unwieldy masses into a total of 12 army sectors, each with its own general, its own staff and its own supply organization.

The results of Vasilevsky's reorganization speak for themselves. In the campaigns of 1943 the flexible new armies battered the Nazis back from more than 500,000 square miles of Russian territory. Today they stand poised on the borders of Germany. Tomorrow they may well be in Berlin.

Statements and opinions herein are private to the writer and are not to be construed as reflecting the views of the Navy department.

NAZI CASUALTIES ARE TREMENDOUS THOUSANDS DEAD

071 machine guns and 57,152 trucks.

Occupation of Lublin was announced in an order of the day by Marshal Joseph Stalin which called for a 224-gun salute of 20 salvoes in Moscow last night. Seizure of Lukow was revealed by the Soviet communique supplement, which said it was taken by Red army columns advancing northwest of Cholm (Kholm.)

Enormous Losses

Soviet units that captured Lublin pushed on nearly 10 miles to the west to take Belzyce, after inflicting what the communique termed "enormous losses" on the enemy in the fighting for Lublin. One unit alone was reported to have wiped out 1,400 German officers and men and captured more than 600 others.

At least 3,200 Nazis were slain in yesterday's battles, while more than 1,200 were taken prisoner.

Gen. Konev's forces, moving swiftly beyond the outflanking rail junction city of Lwow, third largest in Poland, were credited with taking 1,500 enemy prisoners and captured 40 tanks, 50 guns and 30 armored carriers.

They captured the town of Jaworow, three district centers of Drohobocz province and severed the railway and highways running westward from Lwow to Przemysl, 50 miles distant. The German garrison at the town of Kolkiew was surrounded and wiped out in a fierce battle in this region.

Three-Point Drive

Northeast of Warsaw three Soviet columns are converging on the German bastion of Bialystok, northernmost anchor of the crumbling Nazi defense lines in Poland.

All told, the Red army liberated more than 1,370 towns and villages yesterday in its unchecked advance along the 800-mile battlefront stretching from Latvia to Lwow. In addition, 172 German tanks were crippled or destroyed in Monday's fighting, while 36 planes were shot down in aerial combat or by anti-aircraft fire, the communique disclosed.

MAY NOT APPROVE FINANCIAL PLAN

"to the extent that members representing 44 nations could discuss world requirements for postwar rehabilitation, but I'm not equally convinced that the plans proposed will probe acceptable to the American people, as represented by congress.

"I'm almost sure they won't. I have doubts as to congressional approval of the agreement, as it exists now. However, it provides a basis for study."

Reach Agreement

The conference reached agreements on an $8,800,000,000 national monetary fund for stabilizing postwar currencies and a $9,100,000,000 world bank for international reconstruction. The agreement is subject to ratification by congress and the executive and legislative bodies of the other participating united and associated nations.

"I don't believe time could be found for the consideration of so important a program," he explained, "and it will probably have to await the new congress, which convenes in January."

Doubt of congressional approval had earlier been expressed by Senator Taft (R) Ohio.

STERN DECREES FACING GERMANS

war", warned there were a number of indications that a great number of new decrees were forthcoming.

Some of the decrees, DNB said, would cut deep into the everyday life of the Germans.

"Everything not essential to life itself must be rooted out," CBS quoted DNB as saying. "We must be ready to throw our very last reserves into the fight."

Turn In Guns

(From Madrid CBS reported dispatches saying a direct result of the Hitler assassination attempt was an order by Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler to civilians to turn in hunting guns and pistols immediately. The measure would aid the Nazis should a general revolt break out later.)

The unidentified announcer, who spoke to the German army early today, had a Prussian accent and with a typical impersonal intonation of a German officer, according to Reuter's news agency which recorded the broadcast.

He said that last Wednesday and Thursday were black days for the Nazis and although Hitler and Himmler manager to escape, other trusted lieutenants of the Nazis were felled.

"Hitler and Himmler have both escaped the death they deserve for their crime against the fatherland," he said.

Forces Intact

"With cynical hypocrisy they have told you that our movement was completely destroyed, that the revolt has been nipped in the bud. They are telling lies. The gestapo has found and murdered a few of our men, but the bulk of our forces is still intact."

Then the speaker asserted that the Germans still can win if the Nazis are eliminated.

There were continued reports which could not be confirmed that heads of opposition forces were falling constantly as Himmler wielded the axe to crush those against Hitler and Nazi domination. There were widespread reports of dismissals of German generals, frequently the forerunner to execution.

YANK SPEARHEAD NEAR FLORENCE

the Americans have seized. The Nazis also shelled the coastal plain to the south and west.

Patrols found bridges across the Arno river between the northern and southern sections of Pisa demolished.

The Germans fought step by step to defend the hill country before Florence and the Gothic defense line just to the north. When forced out of strong positions they strengthened their line by short withdrawals.

Take Strada

Strada, on highway 2, was captured, and Eighth Army forces continued on the move forward against stiff German opposition. They took the high hill of Monte Domini, two miles from the town of Greve.

The communique from headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson said that the Eighth Army north of Arezzo had scored important local gains in high ground to the east of the Arezzo-Bibbiena road. In the valley of the Tiber armored patrols moved to within two miles of San Sepolero.

On the Adriatic sector, other Eighth Army troops continued to exert pressure on German positions commanding the road running inland from Senigallia and now are threatening the town of Ostra.

Blast Targets

Planes of the Mediterranean Air Force, flying approximately 1,700 sorties, ranged over a wide area to blast targets in Northern Italy, Southern France and Yugoslavia.

Targets of the heavy bombers included two airdromes in the lower Rhone Valley of France, harbor installations at Genoa and a tank repair shop and ball-bearing plants in the Turin area. Troop concentrations in Southern Yugoslavia also were battered.

Planes of the tactical air force concentrated on German communications and military objectives in Northern Italy, in the battle area and in Yugoslavia.

The operations cost seven Allied planes while Six German craft were destroyed.

CITY OFFICIALS TO HEAD PARADE

will participate in the parade. They have been instructed to meet at 7:45 p. m. at South Mill street and Croton avenue.

Truck Show

Following the parade there will be a "truck show" in front of the V. F. W. hall. Black face comedians are now being procured and it is also likely that not only will there be some monologues but also some up-to-the-minute songs by local purveyors of "It" songs.

Some of the children who have pets in the parade will be interviewed by a radio man who will have his mike along the street and where the actors will put on their show on a truck.

According to reports, children today were busy scrubbing and combing Rover, putting a dash of fingernail polish on roosters' combs and polishing up pigeons. Goats are also being bathed and it wouldn't be surprising were the versatile pageant to prove one of the outstanding night events of the recreation season. The affair will start at 8 o'clock and the entire affair concluded by 9:30 p. m.

BLACKSNAKES IN CENTER OF CITY

Two, Possibly Mates, Killed At Mill And Washington Streets Early Today

There have been times when persons who have partaken too freely of a Bacchanalian bowl have not only seen pink elephants, three-legged frogs and snakes but those who strolled early this morning past South Mill and East Washington streets, had not "had a night out" and therefore when they espied two big blacksnakes, possibly mates, crawling along, they were somewhat excited. In fact, it isn't often that a denizen of the wild takes the liberty of visiting the city in daylight and perturbs the attitude of residents of the city.

Where the snakes came from could not be stated. Some believe they may have basked in the chimps of weeds along the Shenango or have fallen from a hay load being hauled through the city.

However, like the moth that plays around the bright lights in a city the snakes don't last long when motor vehicles began rumbling thru the city and they were soon ground lifeless.

seventy-two hours after they stormed ashore at two points north and south of the peninsula, on the western side of the former American possession.

The southerly force sealed off Orote while the northerly force pressed in inland and southward to shove an expanding arc into interior, where the main strength of the enemy garrison is believed concentrated.

Lines Extended

American lines to the south as of 6 p. m. Sunday extended from the inner reaches of Apra harbor to a point opposite Anae Island with the greatest depth of advance approximately 5,000 yards.

In the northern sector, marines held lines extending inland up to 2,900 yards between the Sasa river mouth and Adelup point.

The invaders, supported by carrier aircraft and constant naval bombardment were taking a heavy toll of Japanese lives.

Admiral Nimitz described the situation on Tinian Island as "well in hand." The American beachhead starting about a mile below the northern tip of the island, extended to a point north of Faibus on San Hilo point.

Whether enemy fortifications on the island have been pounded to pieces by pre-invasion aerial, artillery and navy bombardments or whether they have been withdrawn to a more adaptable defense zone in the interior was not known at the present.

Intense Bombing

One thing is certain—that Tinian's airstrip and other installations received one of the most intense bombardments of the Pacific war, rivaling even that of the terrific softening-up treatment administered to Guam.

Separate from Saipan by a three-mile-wide strait, Tinian has been under incessant artillery and air bombardment for several weeks and navy surface ships patrolling close off shore have been smashing targets out of range of land artillery battles on Saipan.

Admiral Nimitz' latest communique announced a new attack on Shimushu Island in the northern Kuriles, the most northerly territory of the Japanese homeland.

A neutralizing strike to prevent enemy air support from reaching Guam was struck by carrier aircraft at Rota Island, about midway between Saipan and Guam, on Sunday. Specific targets were the enemy airdrome and adjacent installations.

way back to Wewak, where enemy headquarters are situated, and the starvation level of rations in the forward areas.

Enemy casualties thus far announced in the suicidal attacks against the Aitape perimeter total 1,474, but thousands more are believed to have perished in the battles over the week-end.

Gen. MacArthur said the Japs casualties "already run into the thousands and his fight for survival is becoming more acute."

Meanwhile, allied airmen continued to blast enemy shipping and airdromes in the Dutch East Indies.

Fifteen Cars Are Derailed On Main Line Tracks Near Coverts Station During Night

Fifteen cars were derailed on a freight train on the P. and L. E. railroad, on the main line tracks between Edenburg and New Castle, near Coverts Station at an early hour this morning, tying up the tracks for several hours, and forcing main line traffic to be routed over the B. and O. railroad between New Castle and Youngstown.

Local officials were unable to give any information on the incident, it was stated. As far as could be learned, no person was injured. By 10 o'clock this morning, the damage had been repaired, and P. and L. E. trains were running over their own tracks.

Hours For Newsies Amounced By Chief

Chief of police Robert D. Hanna today notified all police subordinates that all boys who sell newspapers after nine o'clock at night must have a permit from him. The chief explained that the older Newsies will be allowed to sell until 12:30 a.m. but the younger boys must be off the streets at 11 p.m.

"Are you doing anything in regards to the girls being out late?" a reporter asked.

"Oh, yes. Police-Woman Kathryn Dukes is enforcing the curfew ordinance. She does not take the girls to police headquarters but contacts their parents," the chief stated.

Change Is Expected In Japs' Strategy

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, predicted today that the collapse of the Tojo cabinet in Japan will bring about a change of Japanese war strategy—either offensively or defensively.

King and Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., commander of the third U. S. fleet in the Pacific, were present at Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal's weekly news conference.

"Obviously the Tojo cabinet did not fall unless there was dissatisfaction with the way the Japanese high command was waging war," King said. "But there is no aid and comfort to be gained from the composition of the new cabinet. The Japanese will continue to wage war with all the power they possess.

"We can expect some change in their method of waging war, but whether that means they will go on the defensive or become more aggressive remains to be seen."

FAITH

RULES THAT WILL HURT NO MAN

To make a study of my business. To know my profession in every detail. To mix brains with effort and system, in my work. To find time to do every needful thing by not letting time find me doing nothing. To hoard days as a miser does dollars. To make every hour bring me dividends in increased knowledge and healthful recreations. To keep my future unencumbered with debts. To save as well as earn.

To cut out expensive amusements until I can afford them. To steer clear of dissipation, and guard my health of body and peace of mind as a most precious stock in trade.

CADET REITZ WEDS MARINE SERGEANT

With the entire wedding party in uniform, Marine Sergeant Gladys Biele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Emmerling of Cincinnati, and Navy Air Cadet Howard Reitz, son of Mrs. Thomas Thornton, 503 Neshannock avenue, New Castle, were married in St. Paul's cathedral, Pittsburgh, at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Father John O'Rourke in front of an altar decked with greens and white flowers. The bride, dressed in a white gown, wore a fingertip length veil, and carried a white satin prayer book with bow-knots.

As the five bridesmaids were all in uniform, none of them carried flowers. The ushers were also servicemen. Following the ceremony, breakfast was served at the Royal York hotel for fifty-five guests.

Recently graduated from the Naval air course at Chapel Hill, N. C., the groom returned to duty on Sunday to learn his new assignment. The bride will continue her work in Pittsburgh. Cadet Reitz is a graduate of New Castle high school, and has been in service six years.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included some from Ohio, North Carolina, Philadelphia and New Castle.

The End Approaches

The end of the war in Europe is near—how near events of the next few days will disclose. It is no longer necessary to warn the public that long, hard battles lie ahead. The war in Europe has been won. All that remains is for Germany to throw in the towel.

Precisely what happened in Germany as the going got too rough, with Allied armies defeating the Nazi forces on all battlefields and huge loads of bombs rocking the fatherland, will never be known in every detail. There will be as many versions of events in Germany today as there were of the Russian revolution of 1917 following that internecine war which resulted in victory for bolshevism.

Hitler is licked, Germany is licked, but the krauts are twisting and squirming because they do not like to take the medicine of unconditional surrender. Whether Hitler will commit suicide or attempt to flee to Japan is the subject of much speculation.

But this much is plain. Americans can be realistic about the war in Europe at last. When a government official now says the war in Europe has not been won and no one should pay any attention to the news from the continent, every real American will give him the razzberry. He no doubt is indulging in wishful thinking. He does not relish the prospect of being separated from the government payroll.

What seems to have brought the showdown in Germany is the Russian advance all along the line. For weeks there were reports that the Russian menace to the homeland was causing the greatest excitment among the Germans. But news that is seeping out of Germany is of necessity incomplete. Germans have been killing Germans for a change, it seems, and this is a form of sport of which all the civilized world approves.

It would have been remarkable if there had not been great disaffection within Germany. Hitler, shouting over the radio, mentions 1918. There could be no more obvious comparison than of 1944 and the last year of the World War. Germany is under far greater threat today than she was in July, 1918. The German push to the Marne had failed then, but the Allies had not begun their final offensive. Russia had been taken out of the war by the bolsheviki and Germany had turned nearly all of her strength to the west. It was not until August that Ludendorff became convinced that the war was lost. And it was not until late September that the Allies under Foch began their all-out attack in the west.

Today Germany is assailed from every side, with Russian armies sweeping ahead on a wide front, the Italian front broken, thousands of planes pouring explosives on the Reich and the Normandy beachhead securely established. It would be peculiar if there were not important segments within Germany who see nothing but defeat ahead and want to end the war as soon as possible.

Accidents

At regular intervals state and national safety officials make an effort to do something about accidental deaths among civilians. Usually they start by publishing the gruesome details for the previous year. While the report for 1943 is not as bad as usual by a small percentage, it is serious enough to make every thoughtful person give serious consideration to the problem.

In 1943 there were 94,500 accidental deaths on what has been termed the home front. Since December 7, 1941, there have been in all the armed services a total of 52,000 deaths. It is not a good argument to say that there are many millions more persons at home than are engaged in the business of war. Such a statement is offset by the fact that those in combat face tremendous dangers as compared to those encountered by civilians. Americans grieve deeply over the several thousand countrymen who lost their lives on Saipan, but give nary a thought for the 33,000 who were killed in their own homes in 1943.

Last year fewer persons succumbed to the motor car, a circumstance attributable solely to a decrease in automobile traffic. Thousands were drowned, many burned to death. Others fell to their deaths down stairs, died by slipping in the bath tub or stepping in holes.

The fight for safety goes on in an effort to save the lives of those who hold them cheaply, as accident figures clearly indicate.

Fraternizing In Falsehood

Nazi propaganda at this stage is going over with the German people, if at all, by scare rather than by persuasion. It may be going over with the Japanese, however, by "sympathy." That Gobbels' recent speeches have aroused a sympathetic echo in Japan was recently claimed by Berlin radio, declaring that Tokyo "emphasized the veracity of German propaganda" and thereby has "silenced the derogatory comment of the Allies."

Apparently, Berlin radio is self-persuaded that the farther a lie is carried, the deeper it registers. But telling the German people they had better believe Goebbels because the Japanese do, is rubbing German credulity the wrong way. The very fact that the Japanese endorse something the Nazi propaganda minister says ought to be a caution to German belief, so traditionally suspicious has Germany been of any attitude posed by its axis partner in gansterism.

Each axis partner knows the other is a liar, but finds it none too easy to fraternize in falsehood.

Tremendous Task

Hitler did not succeed in breaking the spirit of the peoples he conquered, but he did go a long way in ruining their economy. With the imminence of war's end, exiled governments in England are making plans to clean up the mess left by invaders and help their peoples get back on their feet. It will be a tremendous task, because the entire economic structure of those nations has been destroyed.

In all these nations the monetary system is a farce. Hitler printed money to pay the wages and supply goods shipped to Germany. Occupational costs charged France, as a typical example, now total 215,000,000,000 francs. Living costs have skyrocketed while earnings have shown little increase.

France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Greece will be beggar nations. France may be better situated than the others because of gold reserves sent to the United States before Hitler could steal them. All in all, the peoples of Europe will find the going none too easy after the invader has been crushed.

Washington Calling

By MARQUIS CHILDS

CHICAGO, July 25.—Henry Wallace is the Wendell Willkie of the Democratic party.

You can't push that parallel too far, but it does have some validity. Wallace, like Willkie, has now been brushed aside by the regulars.

Appoint Wallace

If President Roosevelt is re-elected, he will undoubtedly appoint Wallace to an important post, probably in the foreign field in the light of the vice president's keen interest in world affairs. Such a post, given to him by his friend, Roosevelt, would seem to be the furthest limit of Wallace's public career.

Both Willkie and Wallace have been condemned as visionaries in their respective parties because they have preached world unification. Yet both men have had a profound influence in their time. They've helped to push ahead the frontiers of our thinking.

They even have some personal similarities. They share a dislike for the minutiae of practical politics. And that may be one reason why both men are on the outside looking in.

Of course, when it comes down to personal characteristics, the dissimilarities outweigh the likenesses. Willkie is a shrewd business man and lawyer who has made a fortune—a modest fortune, but sufficient to give him the independence he prizes today.

Around Willkie and Wallace, with the independent voters whose thinking they have colored, a new liberal party could be formed. It would draw out progressives from both of the old-line coalitions. Conceivably in certain states it would be the balance of power. And hotstates would in turn be the pivot in our national elections.

No Third Party

This would be a logical development if we were really a politically-minded people. Yet there is no

HELLENES

The isles of Greece! the isles of Greece!
Where burning Sappho loved and sung,
Where grew the arts of war and peace,
Where Delos rose and Phoebus sprung!
Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.
—Byron

As a respite from subjects political, a friend of mine has written for me something really worthwhile concerning a people now under the Axis yoke,—a people, the like of which has never been recorded in the history of this old world: a people who developed among their number not only great poets, great philosophers, great mathematicians, but also great warriors, for Alexander the Great, son of Philip II of Macedon, accomplished in the few years of his fighting life, the absolute conquest of the whole known world of his day and generation. His name among military geniuses of the world is always mentioned in the same breath with the names of Julius Caesar and Napoleon Bonaparte. And it is of his people, the Hellenes, that my friend writes:

"It is given to men in the ordinary walks to enjoy the companionship of a very limited number of friends, and as those walks become more important, as rated by human standards, the number usually decreases. Among the satisfactorily few which have been vouchsafed me, three first saw the light as it glinted from the blue waves of the Mediterranean and rested on the storied Isles of Greece.

"The first is a gentleman named Frank, who conducts a cigar stand in a room measuring about ten by fourteen feet. Between sales of Camels and Coronas, he can and will quote whole passages from the works of Homer, and he knows every detail of the expedition of the ten thousand mercenaries, as related in the Anabasis, that famous tale of the going up which proved to be a come down. He will point out all the merits and demerits of every hero of the Trojan War on either side, and he thinks that Helen did not rate all that ruckus, especially since she contributed indirectly to the meandering and philandering voyages of Odysseus, who otherwise would have stayed at home and watched Penelope weave.

"But in that case, as I pointed out to him, we would not have the Iliad nor the Odyssey, which would have been a great deprivation to the world. As Ovid says, 'Who would have known of Hector if Troy had been happy?'

"Frank writes occasional articles for newspapers and magazines, all couched in the best of the King's English, and he is president of Epaoh', otherwise Education Progressive Association Othiton Homer. This is a cultural organization, one of the aims of which is to keep alive in the minds of the younger generation the glory that was Greece.

"And there is Pete, who is the proprietor of a shoe-shining establishment (eight chairs) and does a thriving business and profitable business. While he has several assistants, he usually waits on me in person, as he likes to tell about one of his forebears, who stood and fell at the side of Leonidas at Thermopylae—probably his right side, at that.

"He loves to dwell on the struggles between Athens and Sparta, the

THE SENSITIVE SOCL

"I have one sister who is prettier than the rest of us but who for some reason has never made friends. As a result, she early became sensitive about it with the result that she is nervous, unhappy and lonely whenever in company. Can we help her?"—Julia.

Answer: One of human nature's cruel streaks is that which causes the pack to antagonize any member who is sensitive. It is a reversion to the bestial law whereby primitive man slaughtered the under-privileged.

Sensitive people make others nervous. Nervousness is the most contagious of man's maladies. Your sister should for a while be given a career bringing her in contact with inferior people who will look up to her. Social service, welfare or settlement work would be ideal. Her social life should be reorganized to include those friends who really like her and to exclude those who snub her.

And her family and friends should withhold all criticism and, until she recovers from her depression, should compliment her whenever possible. Most attacks of this kind cropping up in family circles are the result of "inside jobs" of hypercriticism or unkindness.

Question: I am a girl of 16 going with a boy of 17. I have never met his parents but his mother is having an anniversary and he wishes me to go to her party. Do you think it would be proper for me to attend? If so, how should I act?—Isabel.

Answer: You really should not go to the party on his invitation alone. His mother should call you on the telephone or write a note inviting you. Suggest this to him. Tell him you do not like to attend on his invitation alone. When you arrive at the party, go to his mother and father and offer your best wishes to the former and congratulations to the latter. If there is no one else waiting to talk with the host and hostess, you may stay with them until someone else comes over to greet them. If they are surrounded by guests, move away after you have greeted them. Before you leave, be sure to go to your hostess and thank her for an enjoyable evening.

Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT
(Copyright, 1944)
By The Baltimore Sun

Planks and Tunes

CHICAGO, July 24.

IN A FEW weeks, not a great deal will be heard about the platform adopted by the recent Democratic convention. Like the Republican platform, it will be largely forgotten long before the campaign is over. The candidates are the platform. It is what they say and do and are that counts.

LIKE GOVERNOR DEWEY, the President will have some "interpreting" to do. Or if, as indicated, he holds rigidly to his role as commander in chief, perhaps the interpretations will be made for him by his running mate or by Mrs. Roosevelt or through the exceedingly useful press conference instrumentality. At any rate, it does seem that if Mr. Roosevelt is to get again the essential Negro vote in the Northern States, it will be necessary to amplify the racial plank, which is so feeble and evasive that it was editorially denounced by one of the fourth term's strongest journalistic supporters—the Chicago Sun.

THE ROOSEVELT job now is to play both ends against the middle—to hold the Northern Negro without losing Southern States. It has been done twice before and may be done again, although it is a bit more difficult now as both sides have become distrustful. Each is full of suspicion that he is being worked. This time the idea is that the South will not mind the coddling of the Negro vote in the North because the platform avoids any specific mention of poll tax or anti-lynching legislation. On the other hand, the Negro leaders who got what they wanted from the Republicans are supposed again to support Mr. Roosevelt, despite the fact that, under Southern pressure, he gave them practically nothing in his personally approved platform.

THE EXCUSE, of course, is that he was in a jam and the plea is that the Negroes still can trust him. That is the position and that is the way it is going to be "interpreted." Whether this double game can be successfully played again remains to be seen. There is certain to be some racial reaction, but its extent will not be known until the votes are counted and little will be heard of it in the campaign. Nor is it likely that any other plank in the platform will make a real issue. Actually, the lines upon which the fourth-term campaign will be made were clearly revealed in the speeches at the convention. It was illuminating that the three main orators—Governor Kerr, the keynoter; Senator Jackson, the permanent chairman, and Senator Barkley, who put Mr. Roosevelt in nomination—all dealt with exactly the same subjects, which was neither an accident nor a coincidence.

ONE OF THESE concerned the "tired-old-men" charge made by the Republicans, the other concerned ex-President Herbert Hoover. The similarity of expressions made the speeches repetitious, but it also made it plain that they will be reflected in the oratorical and journalistic output from now on. That is the party line. As to the "tired old men," there is no doubt that the fourth-termers are sensitive on the subject and feel there is some danger of the public becoming receptive to the idea that what the country needs is youth, vigor and ability in high Government office instead of the aged and aging gentlemen who are now running things. Accordingly, as shown by the three convention speakers, the strategy is to point to the glorious deeds of the political and military men over 60, dwell heavily on the advantages of maturity, wisdom and experience, while denouncing the "inexperience, irresponsibility and unfitness" of men of 42—such, for example, as Governor Dewey.

AS TO MR. HOOVER, not only the three main speakers brought him into their addresses, but so did several of the "second-stringers." Very clearly, the purpose is to recall the depression of 1929, and to suggest that the election of a Republican President would plunge us at once into another depression. To keep on that string is a revival of the Michelson sweat stuff of the early thirties. But that may turn out not as smart as it is thought. For one thing, a scheme like that can hardly be worked twice, particularly as the passing years have increasingly revealed its unfairness. For another, Republicans argue that voters so devoid of reason as to take the suggestion seriously would naturally be for Mr. Roosevelt anyhow. Finally, sneering and jeering at Mr. Hoover in the campaign is so far-fetched and so obviously an appeal to ignorance and stupidity that it may lose votes instead of gaining them. But, at the moment, that is one of the favorite fourth-term tunes.

PICNICS, PARTIES AND PAINS

Home cooking seems to be the safest. Mother's cooking seems to cause less trouble than any other kind.

Picnics and parties are often followed by pains in the region of the stomach.

Sandwich fillers, salads and other unheated foods seem to cause the most trouble.

Someone who has an infection prepares some food. The bacteria get into the food and multiply rapidly.

The food is served cold some hours after it's preparation.

Shortly after the picnic or supper or reunion, people begin to get sick.

Perhaps for picnics or lunches it is safer not to serve dishes which have not been heated after preparation.

Tureens which are kept covered after cooking are probably safest.

Passenger Autos May Be Produced Next Year
Nipponese Worry About Where Halsey Hides
American Admiral Has New Fleet Ready Now

By HELEN ESSARY
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Look for new passenger automobiles to be built around next March if the war against Germany ends this year. That is the date tentatively agreed upon by the War Production Board and the auto industry.

All car production will be held up until Germany is defeated. But if that X-day comes this year, the preliminary output schedule calls for a two million car quota in the early months of civilian production. That number will be a mere drop in the bucket beside the estimated 12 million automobiles which Americans will demand and need in the post-war period.

Halsey Worries Japs

The Nipponese high command would give any thing to know the whereabouts of America's No. 1 Jap killer—Admiral William F. Halsey.

Halsey, who earned his reputation beating numerically superior Jap forces two years ago in the Guadalcanal campaign, has a new fleet which has not yet been reported in action.

Significantly, the Jap high command probably is still pondering Halsey's remarks when he relinquished his South Pacific command. At that time he told his former fighting men he would see them "further along the road to Tokyo."

Does this mean that Halsey will play an important part when American forces move into the Philippines? The Japs would like to know.

In spite of the fact that she has been all but knocked out by the Japanese, fighting China has just enacted a new law requiring compulsory education for all persons—children and illiterate adults alike.

The law climaxes a campaign against illiteracy that began in China 30 years ago. The new public school law provides that all children between the ages of six and 12 go to free public school, and that every adult who cannot read or write attend school for at least a year.

Truman Committee Scores

The Senate's vigilant watchdog—the Truman investigating committee—chalked up another victory for its part in the industrial reconversion agreement among warring government officials.

By indirectly forcing the War Production Board, the military services and other government agencies to come to terms on the resumption of partial civilian production, the committee has virtually played out its role.

The committee intends, however, to continue as the people's forum. Future hearings will probably be marked by complaints from business men denied applications for resumption of civilian production.

The United States Army has won another fight. This one was on the toy front with baby dolls as the objective.

WPB intended to reject the request of a manufacturer for 14 tons of lead and some brass for eyes and voices for Christmas dolls.

It was found out that the boys at the front wanted "life-like" babies for Christmas presents for their kiddies. The Army then fired a few blasts in support of the request when it learned that five per cent of the dolls were to be set aside for request orders from service fathers and the objective was taken.

WIND

Pleasant and friendly and wholesome and gay,
Blithe as a schoolboy when given to play,
But mad as a tyrant that all would de-flower
In the terrible moment it comes into power.

Friend to the weary when evening comes on,
After the sweltering noon-tide has gone,
But vicious as hatred and cruel as sin
In the terrible moments its rages begin.

Aide to the pilots of ships of the air,
Joy to the sailor when weather is fair,
But blind as man's fury and foul in its wrath,
Leaving stark ruin and death in its path.

Gentle as motherhood when it is kind,
But a terrible force which restrains cannot bind;
A will to demolish, no pleading can shake,
A mocker of men and whatever they make.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

Exploratory conversations between the United States, Britain, Russia and China on the formation of a world organization to enforce the peace have been delayed, because of their failure to reach agreement on questions of approach and procedure.

Isn't that great?

We are still in the midst of war, and they are already squabbling about peace!

How can we ever expect permanent peace if we have to have a lot of "approach and procedure" to it.

How can we ever expect permanent peace if peace has to be enforced?

There will never be peace until peace becomes an integral part of human nature.

Peace must first be in your heart before it can become a matter of enforceable agreements.

To have peace we must eliminate greed, we must do away with the lust for power, with double-dealing and crookedness.

Let us never forget that a nation is a conglomeration of individuals.

If the majority of the individuals are bad, then the nation itself will be bad.

If the majority want war, they will have war; if they want peace, they will have peace.

No small coterie of men ever make peace. No conference, no council, no meeting can change human nature.

Hitler could never have come into power if he had not represented the evil that was in the hearts of the German people. Therefore, I say that the German people must suffer the punishment for Hitler's sins.

How can there be peace in a world whose people have no peace within them?

There is war in our daily lives. There is envy, greed, ambition, competition, climbing, jealousy, faithlessness, drunkenness, debauchery.

Mind you, I am not criticising us for what we are. I am just telling you why we have had wars ever since the world began and why we will continue to have them as long as we are as we are.

There will never be peace as long as peace has to be enforced.

Peace on earth will come when there is good will among men and when religion instead of a Sunday duty, becomes life itself.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

SHARING THE TOYS

The early experiences of a little child at sharing his playthings with another child involves big learning problems. Normally the child, especially if an only child has for many weeks and months been used to having his own possessions to do with about as he pleases except as he endangers himself, them or other things, or annoys other persons. Otherwise, older persons have not interfered with his free ownership.

If, moreover, this tot has played only with older children who let him have his way with his own things or theirs and let him boss them, this youngster is faced with a big ordeal when another child near his age joins him.

Recently I witnessed such learning experience in a tot of two. This child had had a playmate of about the same age when she was between 18 and 20 months of age with whom she learned to play agreeably and another similar playmate for a month. After a lapse of several more weeks, there followed another interval of a month when she had no playmates. After that, two boys three and five, pressed by their mother to be kind to this little girl, would come often to play with her. But they soon grew tired of her taking things from them as she chose and rarely came back.

Difficulty of Sharing

When a playmate who also had had very limited experience with playmates her own age arrived, a box of the little hostess' toys were brought out. Let us call the hostess Mary and the playmate Sue.

Sue picked up the big bear and Mary grabbed it shouting "Mine". No one else said a word. Sue next took the goat only to have it also wrenched from her by Mary. Then Sue's mother, wishing to be gracious, told Sue not to take Mary's toys but Mary's mother suggested it would be well not to interfere, though she tried quietly to persuade Mary to share with Sue. Once or twice there were a few fainblows and violent shouts between these little girls, but gradually Mary grew a bit more generous and Sue slightly less aggressive.

By and by the two mothers lured both little girls to go out to see the flowers, when these youngsters mingled more agreeably.

Mothers Didn't Interfere

Mary had clearly made big strides at learning to share but clearly had a long way to go to acquire desirable sharing in spite of her earlier play experiences and successes. Fortunately her mother did not force her to share. Many another young mother in a like situation would have tried to do so feeling that her child being the hostess certainly should be ready to give up her things to her little guest. Had this mother done so she would have made her own child more resistant of sharing.

Don't try to force the little child to share. Patiently try to persuade him to do so. Don't be vexed if he doesn't. Be very approving of him however, if he does.

The End Approaches

The end of the war in Europe is near—how near events of the next few days will disclose. It is no longer necessary to warn the public that long, hard battles lie ahead. The war in Europe has been won. All that remains is for Germany to throw in the towel.

Precisely what happened in Germany as the going got too rough, with Allied armies defeating the Nazi forces on all battlefields and huge loads of bombs rocking the fatherland, will never be known in every detail. There will be as many versions of events in Germany today as there were of the Russian revolution of 1917 following that internecine war which resulted in victory for bolshevism.

Hitler is licked. Germany is licked, but the krauts are twisting and squirming because they do not like to take the medicine of unconditional surrender. Whether Hitler will commit suicide or attempt to flee to Japan is the subject of much speculation.

But this much is plain: Americans can be realistic about the war in Europe at last. When a government official now says the war in Europe has not been won and no one should pay any attention to the news from the continent, every real American will give him the razzberry. He no doubt is indulging in wishful thinking. He does not relish the prospect of being separated from the government payroll.

What seems to have brought the showdown in Germany is the Russian advance all along the line. For weeks there were reports that the Russian menace to the homeland was causing the greatest excitment among the Germans. But news that is seeping out of Germany is of necessity incomplete. Germans have been killing Germans for a change, it seems, and this is a form of sport of which all the civilized world approves.

It would have been remarkable if there had not been great disaffection within Germany. Hitler, shouting over the radio, mentions 1918. There could be no more obvious comparison than of 1944 and the last year of the World War. Germany is under far greater threat today than she was in July, 1918. The German push to the Marne had failed then, but the Allies had not begun their final offensive. Russia had been taken out of the war by the bolsheviki and Germany had turned nearly all of her strength to the west. It was not until August that Ludendorff became convinced that the war was lost. And it was not until late September that the Allies under Foch began their all-out attack in the west.

Today Germany is assailed from every side, with Russian armies sweeping ahead on a wide front, the Italian front broken, thousands of planes pouring explosives on the Reich, and the Normandy beachhead securely established. It would be peculiar if there were not important segments within Germany who see nothing but defeat ahead and want to end the war as soon as possible.

Accidents

At regular intervals state and national safety officials make an effort to do something about accidental deaths among civilians. Usually they start by publishing the gruesome details for the previous year. While the report for 1943 is not as bad as usual by a small percentage, it is serious enough to make every thoughtful person give serious consideration to the problem.

In 1943 there were 94,500 accidental deaths on what has been termed the home front. Since December 7, 1941, there have been in all the armed services a total of 52,000 deaths. It is not a good argument to say that there are many millions more persons at home than are engaged in the business of war. Such a statement is offset by the fact that those in combat face tremendous dangers as compared to those encountered by civilians. Americans grieve deeply over the several thousand countrymen who lost their lives on Saipan, but give nary a thought for the 33,000 who were killed in their own homes in 1943.

Last year fewer persons succumbed to the motor car, a circumstance attributable solely to a decrease in automobile traffic. Thousands were drowned, many burned to death. Others fell to their deaths down stairs, died by slipping in the bath tub or stepping in holes.

The fight for safety goes on in an effort to save the lives of those who hold them cheaply, as accident figures clearly indicate.

Fraternizing In Falsehood

Nazi propaganda at this stage is going over with the German people, if at all, by scare rather than by persuasion. It may be going over with the Japanese, however, by "sympathy." That Gobbels' recent speeches have aroused a sympathetic echo in Japan was recently claimed by Berlin radio, declaring that Tokyo "emphasized the veracity of German propaganda" and thereby has "silenced the derogatory comment of the Allies."

Apparently, Berlin radio is self-persuaded that the farther a lie is carried, the deeper it registers. But telling the German people they had better believe Goebbels because the Japanese do, is rubbing German credulity the wrong way. The very fact that the Japanese endorse something the Nazi propaganda minister says ought to be a caution to German belief, so traditionally suspicious has Germany been of any attitude posed by its axis partner in gansterism.

Each axis partner knows the other is a liar, but finds it none too easy to fraternize in falsehood.

Tremendous Task

Hitler did not succeed in breaking the spirit of the peoples he conquered, but he did go a long way in ruining their economy. With the imminence of war's end, exiled governments in England are making plans to clean up the mess left by invaders and help their peoples get back on their feet. It will be a tremendous task, because the entire economic structure of those nations has been destroyed.

In all these nations the monetary system is a farce. Hitler printed money to pay the wages and supply goods shipped to Germany. Occupational costs charged France, as a typical example, now total 215,000,000,000 francs. Living costs have skyrocketed while earnings have shown little increase.

France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Greece will be beggar nations. France may be better situated than the others because of gold reserves sent to the United States before Hitler could steal them. All in all, the peoples of Europe will find the going none too easy after the invader has been crushed.

Washington Calling

By MARQUIS CHILDS

CHICAGO, July 25.—Henry Wallace is the Wendell Willkie of the Democratic party.

You can't push that parallel too far, but it does have some validity. Wallace, like Willkie, has now been brushed aside by the regulars.

Appoint Wallace

If President Roosevelt is re-elected, he will undoubtedly appoint Wallace to an important post, probably in the foreign field in the light of the vice president's keen interest in world affairs. Such a post, given to him by his friend, Roosevelt, would seem to be the furthest limit of Wallace's public career.

Both Willkie and Wallace have been condemned as visionaries in their respective parties because they have preached world unification. Yet both men have had a profound influence in their time. They've helped to push ahead the frontiers of our thinking.

They even have some personal similarities. They share a dislike for the minutiae of practical politics. And that may be one reason why both men are on the outside looking in.

Of course, when it comes down to personal characteristics, the dissimilarities outweigh the likenesses. Willkie is a shrewd business man and lawyer who has made a fortune—a modest fortune, but sufficient to give him the independence he prizes today.

Around Willkie and Wallace, with the independent voters whose thinking they have colored, a new liberal party could be formed. It would draw out progressives from both of the old-line coalitions. Conceivably in certain states it would be the balance of power. And hosetstates would in turn be the pivot in our national elections.

No Third Party

The isles of Greece! the isles of Greece!
Where burning Sappho loved and sung,
Where grew the arts of war and peace,
Where Delos rose and Phoebus sprung!
Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.
—Byron

As a respite from subjects political, a friend of mine has written for me something really worthwhile concerning a people now under the Axis yoke,—a people, the like of which has never been recorded in the history of this old world; a people who developed among their number, not only great poets, great philosophers, great mathematicians, but also great warriors, for Alexander the Great, son of Philip II of Macedon, accomplished in the few years of his fighting life, the absolute conquest of the whole known world of his day and generation. His name among military geniuses of the world is always mentioned in the same breath with the names of Julius Caesar and Napoleon Bonaparte. And it is of his people, the Hellenes, that my friend writes:

"It is given to men in the ordinary walks to enjoy the companionship of a very limited number of friends, and as those walks become more important, as rated by human standards, the number usually decreases. Among the satisfactorily few which have been vouchsafed me, three first saw the light as it glinted from the blue waves of the Mediterranean and rested on the storied Isles of Greece.

"The first is a gentleman named Frank, who conducts a cigar stand in a room measuring about ten by fourteen feet. Between sales of Camels and Coronas, he can and will quote whole passages from the works of Homer, and he knows every detail of the expedition of the ten thousand mercenaries, as related in the Anabasis, that famous tale of the going up which proved to be a come down. He will point out all the merits and demerits of every hero of the Trojan War on either side, and he thinks that Helen did not rate all that ruckus, especially since she contributed indirectly to the meandering and philandering voyages of Odysseus, who otherwise would have stayed at home and watched Penelope weave.

"But in that case, as I pointed out to him, we would not have the Iliad nor the Odyssey, which would have been a great deprivation to the world. As Ovid says, 'Who would have known of Hector if Troy had been happy?'

"Frank writes occasional articles for newspapers and magazines, all couched in the best of the King's English, and he is president of 'Epaoh', otherwise Education Progressive Association Othiton Homer. This is a cultural organization, one of the aims of which is to keep alive in the minds of the younger generation the glory that was Greece.

"And there is Pete, who is the proprietor of a shoe-shining establishment (eight chairs) and does a thriving business and profitable business. While he has several assistants, he usually waits on me in person, as he likes to tell about one of his forebears, who stood and fell at the side of Leonidas at Thermopylae,—probably his right side, at that.

"He loves to dwell on the struggle between Athens and Sparta, the

THE SENSITIVE SOUL

"I have one sister who is prettier than the rest of us but who for some reason has never made friends. As a result she early became sensitive about it with the result that she is nervous, unhappy and lonely whenever in company. Can we help her?"—Julia

Answer: One of human nature's cruel streaks is that which causes the pack to antagonize any member who is sensitive. It is a reversion to the bestial law whereby primitive man slaughtered the under-privileged.

Sensitive people make others nervous. Nervousness is the most contagious of man's maladies. Your sister should for a while be given a career bringing her in contact with inferior people who will look up to her. Social service, welfare or settlement work would be ideal. Her social life should be reorganized to include those friends who really like her and to exclude those who snub her.

And her family and friends should withhold all criticism and, until she recovers from her depression, should compliment her whenever possible. Most attacks of this kind cropping up in family circles are the result of "inside jobs" of hypercriticism or unkindness.

Question: I am a girl of 16 going with a boy of 17. I have never met his parents but his mother is having an anniversary and he wishes me to go to her party. Do you think it would be proper for me to attend? If so, how should I act?—Isabel

Answer: You really should not go to the party on his invitation alone. His mother should call you on the telephone or write a note inviting you. Suggest this to him. Tell him you do not like to attend on his invitation alone. When you arrive at the party, go to his mother and father and offer your best wishes to the former and congratulations to the latter. If there is no one else waiting to talk with the host and hostess, you may stay with them until someone else comes over to greet them. If they are surrounded by guests, move away after you have greeted them. Before you leave, be sure to go to your hostess and thank her for an enjoyable evening.

Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1944)
By The Baltimore Sun

CHICAGO, July 24.

IN A FEW weeks, not a great deal will be heard about the platform adopted by the recent Democratic convention. Like the Republican platform, it will be largely forgotten long before the campaign is over. The candidates are the platform. It is what they say and do and are that counts.

LIKE GOVERNOR DEWEY, the President will have some "interpreting" to do. Or if, as indicated, he holds rigidly to his role as commander in chief, perhaps the interpretations will be made for him by his running mate or by Mrs. Roosevelt or through the exceedingly useful press conference instrumentality. At any rate, it does seem that if Mr. Roosevelt is to get again the essential Negro vote in the Northern States, it will be necessary to amplify the racial plank, which is so feeble and evasive that it was editorially denounced by one of the fourth term's strongest journalistic supporters—the Chicago Sun.

THE ROOSEVELT job now is to play both ends against the middle—to hold the Northern Negro without losing Southern States. It has been done twice before and may be done again, although it is a bit more difficult now as both sides have become distrustful. Each is full of suspicion that he is being worked. This time the idea is that the South will not mind the coddling of the Negro vote in the North because the platform avoids any specific mention of poll tax or anti-lynching legislation. On the other hand, the Negro leaders who got what they wanted from the Republicans are supposed again to support Mr. Roosevelt, despite the fact that, under Southern pressure, he gave them practically nothing in his personally approved platform.

THE EXCUSE, of course, is that he was in a jam and the plea is that the Negroes still can trust him. That is the position and that is the way it is going to be "interpreted." Whether this double game can be successfully played again remains to be seen. There is certain to be some racial reaction, but its extent will not be known until the votes are counted, and little will be heard of it in the campaign. Nor is it likely that any other plank in the platform will make a real issue. Actually, the lines upon which the fourth-term campaign will be made were clearly revealed in the speeches at the convention. It was illuminating that the three main orators—Governor Kerr, the keynoter, Senator Jackson, the permanent chairman, and Senator Barkley, who put Mr. Roosevelt in nomination—all dealt with exactly the same subjects, which was neither an accident nor a coincidence.

ONE OF THESE concerned the "tired-old-men" charge made by the Republicans, the other concerned ex-President Herbert Hoover. The similarity of expressions made the speeches repetitious, but it also made it plain that they will be reflected in the oratorical and journalistic output from now on. That is the party line. As to the "tired old men" there is no doubt that the fourth-termers are sensitive on the subject and feel there is some danger of the public becoming receptive to the idea that what the country needs is youth, vigor and virility in high Government office instead of the aged and aging gentlemen who are now running things. Accordingly, as shown by the three convention speakers, the strategy is to point to the glorious deeds of the political and military men over 60, dwell heavily on the advantages of maturity, wisdom and experience, while denouncing the "inexperience, irresponsibility and unfitness" of men of 42, such, for example, as Governor Dewey.

AS TO MR. HOOVER, not only the three main speakers brought him into their addresses, but so did several of the "second-stringers." Very clearly, the purpose is to recall the depression of 1929, and to suggest that the election of a Republican President would plunge us at once into another depression. To harp on that string is a revival of the Michelson smear stuff of the early thirties. But that may turn out not as smart as it is thought. For one thing, a scheme like that can hardly be worked twice, particularly as the passing years have increasingly revealed its unfairness. For another, Republicans argue that voters so devoid of reason as to take the suggestion seriously would naturally be for Mr. Roosevelt anyhow. Finally, sneering and jeering at Mr. Hoover in the campaign is so far-fetched and so obviously an appeal to ignorance and stupidity that it may lose votes instead of gaining them. But, at the moment, that is one of the favorite fourth-term tunes.

PICNICS, PARTIES AND PAINS

Home cooking seems to be the safest. Mother's cooking seems to cause less trouble than any other kind.

Picnics and parties are often followed by pains in the region of the stomach.

Sandwich fillers, salads and other unheated foods seem to cause the most trouble.

Someone who has an infection prepares some food. The bacteria get into the food and multiply rapidly.

The food is served cold some hours after it's preparation.

Shortly after the picnic or supper or reunion, people begin to get sick.

Perhaps for picnics or lunches it is safer not to serve dishes which have not been heated after preparation.

Tureens which are kept covered after cooking are probably safest.

Nipponese Worry About Where Halsey Hides
American Admiral Has New Fleet Ready Now

By HELEN ESSARY
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Look for new passenger automobiles to be built around next March if the war against Germany ends this year. That is the date tentatively agreed upon by the War Production Board and the auto industry.

All car production will be held up until Germany is defeated. But if that X-day comes this year, the preliminary output schedule calls for a two million car quota in the early months of civilian production. That number will be a mere drop in the bucket beside the estimated 12 million automobiles which Americans will demand and need in the post-war period.

Halsey Worries Japs

The Nipponese high command would give any thing to know the whereabouts of America's No. 1 Jap killer—Admiral William F. Halsey.

Halsey, who earned his reputation beating numerically superior Jap forces two years ago in the Guadalcanal campaign, has a new fleet which has not yet been reported in action.

Significantly, the Jap high command probably is still pondering Halsey's remarks when he relinquished his South Pacific command. At that time he told his former fighting men he would see them "further along the road to Tokyo."

Does this mean that Halsey will play an important part when American forces move into the Philippines? The Japs would like to know.

In spite of the fact that she has been all but knocked out by the Japanese, fighting China has just enacted a new law requiring compulsory education for all persons—children and illiterate adults alike.

The law climaxes a campaign against illiteracy that began in China 50 years ago. The new public school law provides that all children between the ages of six and 12 go to free public school, and that every adult who cannot read or write attend school for at least a year.

Truman Committee Scores

The Senate's vigilant watchdog—the Truman investigating committee—chalked up another victory for its part in the industrial reconversion agreement among warring government officials.

By indirectly forcing the War Production Board, the military services and other government agencies to come to terms on the resumption of partial civilian production, the committee has virtually played out its role.

The committee intends, however, to continue as the people's forum. Future hearings will probably be marked by complaints from business men denied applications for resumption of civilian production.

The United States Army has won another fight. This one was on the toy front with baby dolls as the objective.

WPB intended to reject the request of a manufacturer for 14 tons of lead and some brass for eyes and voices for Christmas dolls.

It was found out that the boys at the front wanted "life-like" babies for Christmas presents for their kiddies. The Army then fired a few blasts in support of the request when it learned that five per cent of the dolls were to be set aside for request orders from service fathers and the objective was taken.

WIND

Pleasant and friendly and wholesome and gay,
Blithe as a schoolboy when given to play,
But mad as a tyrant that all would de-flower
In the terrible moment it comes into power.

Friend to the weary when evening comes on,
After the sweltering noon-tide has gone,
But vicious as hatred and cruel as sin
In the terrible moments its rages begin.

Aide to the pilots of ships of the air;
Joy to the sailor when weather is fair,
But blind as man's fury and foul in its wrath,
Leaving stark ruin and death in its path.

Gentle as motherhood when it is kind,
But a terrible force which restraint cannot bind;
A will to demolish no pleading can shake
A mocker of men and whatever they make.

What People Say

(By International News Service)

ROME—Pope Pius, alluding to the newly organized communist catholic movement: "We have to complain that some of our sons, although they go on calling themselves Catholics, follow theories that have been formally condemned, and appear to have forgotten the more important and more sacred teachings of the church."

WASHINGTON—Beardsley Ruml, author of the pay-as-you-go income tax plan, now proposing an end to corporate income levies: "It comes down to the fact that you can't tax a piece of paper—and that's all that a corporation is."

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

Exploratory conversations between the United States, Britain, Russia and China on the formation of a world organization to enforce the peace have been delayed, because of their failure to reach agreement on questions of approach and procedure.

Isn't that great?

We are still in the midst of war, and they are already squabbling about peace!

How can we ever expect permanent peace if we have to have a lot of "approach and procedure" to it.

How can we ever expect permanent peace if peace has to be enforced?

There will never be peace until peace becomes an integral part of human nature.

Peace must first be in your heart before it can become a matter of enforceable agreements.

To have peace we must eliminate greed, we must do away with the lust for power, with double-dealing and crookedness.

Let us never forget that a nation is a conglomeration of individuals.

If the majority of the individuals are bad, then the nation itself will be bad.

If the majority want war, they will have war; if they want peace, they will have peace.

No small coterie of men ever make peace. No conference, no council, no meeting can change human nature.

Hitler could never have come into power if he had not represented the evil that was in the hearts of the German people. Therefore, I say that the German people must suffer the punishment for Hitler's sins.

How can there be peace in a world whose people have no peace within them?

There is war in our daily lives. There is envy, greed, ambition, competition, climbing, jealousy, faithlessness, drunkenness, debauchery.

Mind you, I am not criticising us for what we are. I am just telling you why we have had wars ever since the world began and why we will continue to have them as long as we are as we are.

There will never be peace as long as peace has to be enforced.

Peace on earth will come when there is good will among men and when religion, instead of a Sunday duty, becomes life itself.

The Parent Problem

SHARING THE TOYS

The early experiences of a little child at sharing his playthings with another child involves big learning problems. Normally the child, especially if an only child, has for many weeks and months been used to having his own possessions to do with about as he pleases, except as he endangers himself, them, or other things, or annoys other persons. Otherwise, older persons have not interfered with his free ownership.

If, moreover, this tot has played only with older children who let him have his way with his own things or theirs and let him boss them, this youngster is faced with a big ordeal when another child near his age joins him.

Recently I witnessed such learning experience in a tot of two. This child had had a playmate of about the same age when she was between 18 and 20 months of age with whom she learned to play agreeably, and another similar playmate for a month. After a lapse of several more weeks, there followed another interval of a month—when she had no playmates. After that, two boys, three and five, pressed by their mother to be kind to this little girl, would come often to play with her. But they soon grew tired of her taking things from them as she chose and rarely came back.

Difficulty of Sharing

When a playmate, who also had had very limited experience with playmates her own age arrived, a box of the little hostess' toys were brought out. Let us call the hostess Mary and the playmate Sue.

Sue picked up the big bear and Mary grabbed it shouting "Mine". No one else said a word. Sue next took the goat only to have it also wrenched from her by Mary. Then Sue's mother, wishing to be gracious, told Sue not to take Mary's toys but Mary's mother suggested it would be well not to interfere, though she tried quietly to persuade Mary to share with Sue. Once or twice there were a few faint blows and violent shouts between these little girls, but gradually Mary grew a bit more generous and Sue slightly less aggressive.

By and by the two mothers lured both little girls to go out to see the flowers, when these youngsters mingled more agreeably.

Mothers Didn't Interfere

Mary had clearly made big strides at learning to share but clearly had a long way to go to acquire desirable sharing, in spite of her earlier play experiences and successes. Fortunately, her mother did not force her to share. Many another young mother in a like situation would have tried to do so feeling that her child being the hostess certainly should be ready to give up her things to her little guest. Had this mother done so she would have made her own child more resistant of sharing.

Don't try to force the little child to share. Patiently try to persuade him to do so. Don't be vexed if he doesn't. Be very approving of him however, if he does.

Downtown Barn Is Recreation Center

Salvation Army Offers Crafts And Photography To Youngsters Of Neighborhood

With the mortgage on their property completely paid off, the Salvation Army is now turning to improvements of the main building and of the barn which is used for recreation, Captain Thelma Dundan said today.

Walls of the second floor of the barn have a bright new finish, and the watermelon seeds scattered on the floor, though not meant to be a decorative touch, show the good use to which the barn is put by the youngsters of the neighborhood.

In one corner of the second floor a large photoflood bulb and reflector fastened into a floor lamp showed another use of the barn. Amateur photography is one of the most popular hobbies taken up at the barn, Captain Dundan has found. The young people have their own dark room where they develop their own films and print their own pictures, turning out some pretty good ones, and then a few others.

Craftwork

Downstairs there are a lathe and neat rows of tools which are used by boys of the craft on Wednesday evenings when the barn is turned over to the making of anything from statues of horses to glass holders.

Younger girls the age of Brownies in Girl Scouting, have their own organization at the Army headquarters. They come from all churches or none at all, but they work together every Tuesday afternoon as the Sunbeam group. New gray uniforms with yellow cuffs and yellow ties and little gray berets are being ordered for the girls.

The youth program at the Army is open to all children of the neighborhood, Captain Dundan said. The groups are growing, and more and more special work is being taken up.

NEWS AND VIEWS AT CAPITAL

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 25.—Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence appears to have landed U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey another political spanking as the result of the selection of U. S. Sen. Harry S. Truman, Missouri, as President Roosevelt's running mate.

Guffey was a died-in-the-wool supporter of outgoing Vice President Henry A. Wallace for another term and was confident of victory.

His sister, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, a national committeewoman, made one of the seconding speeches for Wallace. Lawrence, who has bested Guffey in the past, backed the Missourian to the hilt and as a result Pennsylvania's junior senator was pushed into the shadows.

Despite pledges of party friendship, the two men are political enemies.

The Pennsylvania Industrial Union Council (CIO) will meet at Harrisburg July 29 to permit delegates to approve 1944 campaign plans outlined by the CIO's political action committee. It remains to be seen what course the delegates will follow since the CIO sustained a minor political setback when Wallace lost to Truman.

The Pennsylvania Federationist, monthly bulletin of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor (AFL), also was ready to campaign for a fourth term for the president.

The state federation, claiming more than 325,000 members, enthusiastically endorsed Mr. Roosevelt at the annual state convention.

The bulletin warned members, however, that unions faced a tough fight in efforts to expand. "The next two years can bring a critical change in the status of organized workers," the bulletin stated. "New developments must be scrutinized and carefully acted upon."

Both major parties, as well as the unions, have announced plans to launch campaigns to register a maximum number of Pennsylvanians and thus have them eligible to vote in the general election November 7.

Despite the concerted effort, there was little hope that registrations would top the 5,014,710 figures hung up in 1940. War time apathy to politics coupled with inductions into the armed forces was expected to slow down enrollments and the November turnout.

In 1936, when President Roosevelt carried Pennsylvania for the first time, there were 4,916,346 registrations and 4,138,426 votes. Eight years ago there were 59,712 more ballots cast than in 1940 despite a half-million registration for the first time in the commonwealth's history. Registrations in 1932, when former President Hoover defeated President Roosevelt by approximately 157,000 votes, were 3,912,671 but the turnout was only 2,859,177.

NEWS AND VIEWS AT CAPITAL

(By International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 25.—Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence appears to have landed U.S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey another political spanking as the result of the selection of U.S. Sen. Harry S. Truman, Missouri, as President Roosevelt's running mate. . . . Guffey was a died-in-the-wool supporter of outgoing Vice President Henry A. Wallace for another term and was confident of victory. . . . His sister, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, a national committeewoman, made one of the seconding speeches for Wallace. . . . Lawrence, who has bested Guffey in the past, backed the Missourian to the hilt and as a result Pennsylvania's junior senator was pushed into the shadows. . . . Despite pledges of party friendship, the two men are political enemies.

The Pennsylvania Industrial Union Council (CIO) will meet at Harrisburg July 29 to permit delegates to approve 1944 campaign plans outlined by the CIO's political action committee. . . . It remains to be seen what course the delegates will follow since the CIO sustained a minor political setback when Wallace lost to Truman.

The Pennsylvania Federationist, monthly bulletin of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor (AFL), also was ready to campaign for a fourth term for the president. . . . The state federation, claiming more than 325,000 members, enthusiastically endorsed Mr. Roosevelt at the annual state convention. . . . The bulletin warned members, however, that unions faced a tough fight in efforts to expand. . . . "The next two years can bring a critical change in the status of organized workers," the bulletin stated. "New developments must be scrutinized and carefully acted upon."

Both major parties, as well as the unions, have announced plans to launch campaigns to register a maximum number of Pennsylvanians and thus have them eligible to vote in the general election November 7. . . . Despite the concerted efforts, there was little hope that registrations would top the 5,014,710 figures hung up in 1940. . . . War time apathy to politics coupled with inductions into the armed forces was expected to slow down enrollments and the November turnout. . . . In 1936, when President Roosevelt carried Pennsylvania for the first time, there were 4,916,346 registrations and 4,138,426 votes. Eight years ago there were 59,712 more ballots cast than in 1940 despite a half-million registration for the first time in the commonwealth's history. Registrations in 1932, when former President Hoover defeated President Roosevelt by approximately 157,000 votes, were 3,912,671 but the turnout was only 2,859,177.

State Attorney General Accuses Refining Company Of Dumping Ammonia In Stream

HARRISBURG, July 25.—(INS)—A petition by the justice department was on file today in Dauphin county court for an injunction to prevent the Franklin Creek Refining Corp. of Sugar Creek township in Venango county, from dumping waste liquid ammonia into French Creek.

Attorney General James H. Duff said the company's action resulted in a "great fish kill" and that criminal information was filed in court. The company manufactures lubricating oils and greases.

Duff said the commonwealth would vigorously prosecute the case because "if this type of flagrant disregard of the public interest is to go unpunished it is idle to talk of a conservation program in Pennsylvania."

Duff disclosed that thousands of fish were killed, some three and a half feet long and weighing up to 30 pounds.

"The flow of this deadly substance into the stream was not an accident," Duff stated. "It did not escape from the refinery as a result of causes beyond control.

"It was removed from the refinery and dumped into a place where it was certain to enter the stream as rain falling in the same location," He explained. "The outrage against the public is that this poisonous ammonia liquor could have been disposed of easily and harmlessly by the expenditure of a small sum of money by the Franklin Creek Refining Corporation."

Youth Confesses Killing Of Mother

NEW YORK, July 25—(INS)—Police Monday said 18-year-old John Safranek had confessed strangling his mother, Dora, to death early yesterday morning as she slept in their tenement apartment.

He killed her, detectives quoted him as saying, because he "didn't like her."

The youth first told police that he had found his mother, who weighed nearly 300 pounds, strangled and had seen a man hurrying from her bedroom by another door. Police said he changed his story after hours of questioning and confessed to the killing. Police quoted him as saying he also took $2 from his mother's pocketbook.

HARRISBURG, July 25.—(INS)—The state defense council announced today the establishment of a "teen-age" program designed to coordinate the operation of the youth recreation centers in Pennsylvania.

The new program will be under the direction of the council's war service division and will be directed by Harry Hirsch, of Wilkes-Barre, former council representative in Region II.

Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, director, said "a number of such centers have sprung up over the state and there is a need for the correlation of the experiences of those already established and for the opening of others in many cities and towns."

fights with Thebes and Corinth and the Boys from Syracuse, the battles of Marathon and Salamis, and the tug of war which ensued when Greek joined Greek and engaged their common enemies, of whom there seems to have been a constant supply.

"Peter is the head of 'Ahepa,' an abbreviation for American-Hellenic Progressive Association. This organization has accomplished wonders in collecting funds for Greek relief and in assistance to refugees, and in this work the members are very generous contributors.

"The classic knowledge of these boys is astonishing when we consider that up to just a few years ago their country was under Turkish domination. It was not permitted to teach the Greek language in schools, and the study of Greek history was taboo.

"The third subject of this trilogy, and by way of climax, is a beautiful, dark-eyed, black haired girl of seventeen. Dante Gabriel Rosetti, in 'The Blessed Damozel,' describes the Lady Mary's five hand-maidens, whose names were five symphonies, but this maiden outshines them all in that respect, for she is called Zographia, which means 'Beautiful Picture.' Born at the foot of Hymettus, she has tasted of its honey, and she is on intimate terms with all the hierarchy and the lesser nobility of the court of Zeus.

"She knows, not only that these so-called mythological characters really existed, but that they are still active, for as she has clambered barefoot up the slopes of Mount Olympus, she has seen unmistakable signs of their presence. She seems to show a naive interest in the frequent visits which the gods made to earth to spend quiet Sunday evenings in fireside chats with mortal maidens.

"This procilivity extended also to the feminine members of the royal family, and one of the most persistent visitors was Artemis, goddess of the moon. She slipped down to earth quite often, and on those nights there was no moon.

Chaste Artemis, who guides the lunar car;
Her Pale nocturnal vigils ever keeping,
Glides through the silent space from star to star,
And, blushing, stoops to kiss Endymion, sleeping!

Endymion was just a simple shepherd lad, but exceedingly handsome and virile. Imagine the thrill he must have experienced when peacefully sleeping on a quiet hillside, he was awakened by a kiss which caused the entire solar system to go off the air for the night!

"Even we Barbarians know about these things, for we are told in the sixth chapter of Genesis that 'The sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were fair . . . There were giants in the earth in those days . . . and they bare children unto them, and the same became mighty men, which were of old, men of renown.'

"Zographia came to America five or six years ago, and although she knew not a word of English, she now speaks it without an accent or grammatical error, and she has just taken first honors in her class at high school.

"Many people think of Greece as a small, unimportant country, at the tail end of the ebullient Balkan states, a nation which even had to import its own king from the land of the Northmen, but, as Will Durant remarked in the preface to his recent book, 'The Life of Greece,'

"Excepting machinery, there is hardly anything secular in our culture that does not come from Greece. Schools, gymnasiums, arithmetic, geometry, history, rhetoric, physics, biology, anatomy, hygiene, therapy, cosmetics, poetry, music, tragedy, comedy, philosophy, theology, agnosticism, stoicism, epicureanism, ethics, politics, idealism, philanthropy, cynicism, tyranny, plutocracy, democracy, these are all Greek words for cultural forms first matured for good or evil by the abounding energy of the Greeks. There is nothing in Greek civilization that does not illuminate our own.'

"Our very alphabet is attributed to Cadmus, in ancient Greece. It was known originally as the Cadmean Letters, and the word itself comes from the first two of those letters, Alpha and Beta.

"The architecture of the greatest public monuments of our time and in our country, such as the memorials to Jefferson, Lincoln, Grant and hundreds of others is pure Grecian in design. The New Testament was written, in Greek, the one language used by cultured people of all the nations of antiquity.

"What other nation in the history of the world could have produced characters such as these: Pericles, the master statesman and leader, who initiated, nurtured and ruled the Golden Age, an era which never has been duplicated or even approached; Archimedes, the master mathematician; Draco and Lycurgus, the law-givers; Demosthenes, the greatest orator that ever lived; Socrates, Plato and Aristotle, who practically founded philosophic thought as we now know it?

"What land has known such poets as Homer, Pindar, Aristophanes, Aeschylus, Sophocles or Euripides? What sculpture can compare with that of Phidias or Praxiteles? Where can me match the military genius and fighting qualities of Achilles, Agamemnon, Themistocles, Aristides, Epaminondas, Alcibiades,—of Miltiades and his son Cimon?

"If you wish fascinating entertainment, read the history and romance of these great characters, and countless scores of their countrymen, whose lives have influenced profoundly all the philosophers and thinkers, all the artists, artisans and artifacts of the modern world in every branch of endeavor.

"Lord Byron, a passionate lover of everything Peloponnesian, lamenting the decline and fall of the Greek States and the passing of their greatness, said,

'Eternal Summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.'

"But regardless of the deplorable political and economic conditions now existing in the country, there are scattered all over the world myriads of Hellenes such as the three I have referred to, and so long as they remain on the earth, their sun will never set, and the spirit of Hellas can never die."

WASHINGTON CALLING

sign on the horizon of such a party coming into being.

What does Wallace do when he and his ideas are rejected? He faces the cameras with a grin and says he will follow the leader. Willkie, who wasn't even asked to participate in the deliberations of the GOP, knows from experience how difficult it is to break through the crust of professional organization.

Too often we leave our politics to the professionals, and some day we may pay dearly for it. The unreality of the old-line coalitions, such as the Democratic party with the CIO and the conservative South, breeds a kind of frustration. People become convinced that they cannot express their convictions through such a disjointed instrument, and what has happened here is more or less proof that they can't.

Professionals Did It

It was the professionals who did a thorough job on Wallace. Above all, the professionals from the deep South deserve the credit, and they are taking it. I imagine you could reproduce this conversation, between two delegates, a hundred times over:

"Well, we sure showed that Sidney Hillman where he could go to. Coming here to our convention and telling us what to do!"

"Yes, sir—and that CIO and all those strikes, and then he comes here and makes such a fuss. Well we taught him a lesson."

The same kind of satisfaction radiated from the Kellys, the Hagues and the Crumps, although it was not displayed so obviously. They, too, feel that the amateurs, the interlopers, have been told of and made to realize who runs the Democratic party.

That was one of the comic and at the same time tragic aspects of the meeting just ended—the little amateurs who ran about in circles talking to each other and assuring you they had things under control. Among them were honest, sincere men and women from the grassroots, and their dismay is a little sad. The ludicrous aspect comes from the deflation of the Junior Machiavellis out of Washington and New York.

May Accept Truman

Appraising the effect of the Wallace rejection on the result this fall, most of us probably overestimate it. Labor and the liberals will feel less inclination to get out and work; registration of new voters may suffer. On the other hand, independents on the right, who want to vote for Roosevelt because of the war and post-war situation, will be more inclined to accept Truman than Wallace in spite of the bossism issue.

Party regularity prevailed again. That's the Chicago story.

At the same time he emphasized that he was speaking of the government of Argentina as distinct from the people of that country.

Hull made his charge in the course of a press conference, in which he disclosed that a body of information had been brought together by the various American governments in order to clarify the inter-American policy on Argentina.

THE WORLD AND THE MUD PUDDLES

fights with Thebes and Corinth and the Boys from Syracuse; the battles of Marathon and Salamis, and the tug of war which ensued when Greek joined Greek and engaged their common enemies, of whom there seems to have been a constant supply.

"Peter is the head of 'Ahepa,' an abbreviation for American-Hellenic Progressive Association. This organization has accomplished wonders in collecting funds for Greek relief and in assistance to refugees, and in this work the members are very generous contributors.

"The classic knowledge of these boys is astonishing when we consider that up to just a few years ago their country was under Turkish domination. It was not permitted to teach the Greek language in schools, and the study of Greek history was taboo.

"The third subject of this trilogy, and by way of climax, is a beautiful, dark-eyed, black haired girl of seventeen. Dante Gabriel Rosetti, in 'The Blessed Damozel'; describes the Lady Mary's five hand-maidens, whose names were five symphonies, but this maiden outshines them all in that respect, for she is called Zographia, which means 'Beautiful Picture'. Born at the foot of Hymettus, she has tasted of its honey, and she is on intimate terms with all the hierarchy and the lesser nobility of the court of Zeus.

"She knows, not only that these so-called mythological characters really existed, but that they are still active, for as she has clambered barefoot up the slopes of Mount Olympus, she has seen unmistakable signs of their presence. She seems to show a naive interest in the frequent visits which the gods made to earth to spend quiet Sunday evenings in fireside chats with mortal maidens.

"This procilivity extended also to the feminine members of the royal family, and one of the most persistent visitors was Artemis, goddess of the moon. She slipped down to earth quite often, and on those nights there was no moon.

'Chaste Artemis, who guides the lunar car,
Her Pale nocturnal vigils ever keeping,
Glides through the silent space from star to star,
And, blushing, stoops to kiss Endymion, sleeping!'

Endymion was just a simple shepherd lad, but exceedingly handsome and virile. Imagine the thrill he must have experienced when peacefully sleeping on a quiet hillside, he was awakened by a kiss which caused the entire solar system to go off the air for the night!

"Even we Barbarians know about these things, for we are told in the sixth chapter of Genesis that 'The sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were fair . . . . There were giants in the earth in those days . . . . and they bare children unto them, and the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown.'

"Zographia came to America five or six years ago, and although she knew not a word of English, she now speaks it without an accent or grammatical error, and she has just taken first honors in her class at high school.

"Many people think of Greece as a small, unimportant country, at the tail end of the ebullient Balkan states, a nation which even had to import its own king from the land of the Northmen, but, as Will Durant remarked in the preface to his recent book, 'The Life of Greece'

"'Excepting machinery, there is hardly anything secular in our culture that does not come from Greece. Schools, gymnasiums, arithmetic, geometry, history, rhetoric, physics, biology, anatomy, hygiene, therapy, cosmetics, poetry, music, tragedy, comedy, philosophy, theology, agnosticism, stoicism, epicureanism, ethics, politics, idealism, philanthropy, cynicism, tyranny, plutocracy, democracy; these are all Greek words for cultural forms first matured for good or evil by the abounding energy of the Greeks. There is nothing in Greek civilization that does not illuminate our own.'

"Our very alphabet is attributed to Cadmus, in ancient Greece. It was known originally as the Cadmeian Letters, and the word itself comes from the first two of those letters, Alpha and Beta.

"The architecture of the greatest public monuments of our time and in our country, such as the memorials to Jefferson, Lincoln, Grant and hundreds of others is pure Grecian in design. The New Testament was written in Greek, the one language used by cultured people of all the nations of antiquity.

"What other nation in the history of the world could have produced characters such as these: Pericles, the master statesman and leader, who initiated, nurtured and ruled the Golden Age, an era which never has been duplicated or even approached; Archimedes, the master mathematician; Draco and Lycurgus, the law-givers; Demosthenes, the greatest orator that ever lived; Socrates, Plato and Aristotle, who practically founded philosophic thought as we now know it?

"What land has known such poets as Homer, Pindar, Aristophanes, Aeschylus, Sophocles or Euripides? What sculpture can compare with that of Phidias or Praxtiles? Where can me match the military genius and fighting qualities of Achilles, Agamemnon, Themistocles, Aristides, Epaminondas, Alcibiades,—of Miltiades and his son Cimon?

"If you wish fascinating entertainment, read the history and romance of these great characters, and countless scores of their countrymen, whose lives have influenced profoundly all the philosophers and thinkers, all the artists, artisans and artifacts of the modern world in every branch of endeavor.

"Lord Byron, a passionate lover of everything Peloponnesian, lamenting the decline and fall of the Greek States and the passing of their greatness, said,

'Eternal Summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.'

"But regardless of the deplorable political and economic conditions now existing in the country, there are scattered all over the world myriads of Hellenes such as the three I have referred to, and so long as they remain on the earth, their sun will never set, and the spirit of Hellas can never die."

WASHINGTON CALLING

sign on the horizon of such a party coming into being.

What does Wallace do when he and his ideas are rejected? He faces the cameras with a grin and says he will follow the leader. Willkie, who wasn't even asked to participate in the deliberations of the GOP, knows from experience how difficult it is to break through the crust of professional organization.

Too often we leave our politics to the professionals, and some day we may pay dearly for it. The unreality of the old-line coalitions, such as the Democratic party with the CIO and the conservative South, breeds a kind of frustration. People become convinced that they cannot express their convictions through such a disjointed instrument, and what has happened here is more or less proof that they can't.

Professionals Did It

It was the professionals who did a thorough job on Wallace. Above all, the professionals from the deep South deserve the credit, and they are taking it. I imagine you could reproduce this conversation, between two delegates, a hundred times over.

"Well, we sure showed that Sidney Hillman where he could go to. Coming here to our convention and telling us what to do!"

"Yes, sir—and that CIO and all those strikes, and then he comes here and makes such a fuss. Well we taught him a lesson."

The same kind of satisfaction radiated from the Kellys, the Hagues and the Crumps, although it was not displayed so obviously. They, too, feel that the amateurs, the interlopers, have been told of and made to realize who runs the Democratic party.

That was one of the comic and at the same time tragic aspects of the meeting just ended—the little amateurs who ran about in circles talking to each other and assuring you they had things under control. Among them were honest, sincere men and women from the grassroots, and their dismay is a little sad. The ludicrous aspect comes from the deflation of the Junior Machiavellis out of Washington and New York.

May Accept Truman

Appraising the effect of the Wallace rejection on the result this more inclined to accept Truman than Wallace in spite of the bossism fall, most of us probably overestimate it. Labor and the liberals issue.

will feel less inclination to get out and work; registration of new voters may suffer. On the other hand, independents on the right, who want to vote for Roosevelt because of the war and post-war situation, will be

Party regularity prevailed again. That's the Chicago story.

Democrats Split By Two Factions

"Big City Bosses" And "CIO Radical Left Wing" Both Seek Control

By WILLIAM THEIS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 25—The Republicans are preparing today to direct a major part of their 1944 campaign attack against the "big city boss" and "radical left wing" elements in the Democratic party in an effort to cash in on unrest developed by the tumultuous Roosevelt-Truman convention.

Their fire, it appeared, will be centered on Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO political action committee, and the Democratic machine triumvirate of Hague, Kelley and Flynn.

That was the outline of GOP strategy left in Washington following a flying visit by Republican national chairman Herbert Brownell Jr., the young man from Nebraska and Manhattan picked by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York to lead his drive against a fourth term for president Roosevelt.

Two Big Factions

"Control of the Democratic party rests wholly with two elements—the bosses of the corrupt big city machines and the radical left wingers who are closer to communism than to any other political philosophy," Brownell charged in a statement in which he extolled Republican "unity."

The 40-year-old party leader was asked by reporters to be more specific on his reference to "left wingers."

"A number of them would be very proud to work with the Communists," he replied. "We'll have considerable to say about that in the campaign."

At the same time Brownell claimed the Dewey-Bricker ticket would get votes from the CIO, of which Hillman's political action committee is the busy campaign arm. He was more specific, however, in his claims of support from the United Mine workers camp headed by John L. Lewis.

Swing To G.O.P.

Miners and their wives in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, and Illinois, said Brownell, are showing a "very substantial" swing to the Republican column.

Brownell stressed the events which highlighted the Democratic convention in Chicago last week where the CIO lost its battle to win renomination for Vice President Henry A. Wallace, and old-line Democratic leaders behind Mayor Ed Kelley of Chicago, Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and Committeeman Edward J. Flynn of New York "put over" Sen. Harry S. Truman.

New Kensington Next For Legion

Second Round Of Elimination Series Will Be Played Here Tomorrow Night

New Castle's strong American Legion Junior team, winner of the series with Sharpsville here last week, will resume play in the district elimination contests here on Wednesday evening, when they will play New Kensington, winner of the series with Ford City, at George Washington field. The game will start promptly at 6 o'clock, Manager Earl C. Moffatt stated today.

The New Kensington-Ford City series did not finish up until last night, rain interfering with the second game, and no contest was played on Sunday, so the series was not decided until last night.

The second game will be played at New Kensington on Friday evening, and the third game, if one is necessary, will be played at Slippery Rock Saturday, Moffatt stated today.

Final practice was held by the local team last night, a good workout being staged before the rain, and Coach Coen is well satisfied with the condition of the team.

Madonna Sodality Picnics On Farm

Directors Given Surprise At Close Of Picnic Dinner Outing By Sodalists

"Ye Olde Farm" at a nearby spot was chosen by Madonna Sodalists on July 23 for a basket picnic outing which was largely attended.

Activities were underway at 2 o'clock with a variety of races, games, mushball, volley ball and other entertaining pastimes. Prizes in the various events fell to Helen Magusiak, Leona, Jessie and Stella Krupt.

A bountiful picnic lunch was served afterwards by those in charge.

Throughout the afternoon, snapshots were taken of the assemblage to be filed in their "Book of Memoirs".

The group later adjourned to their Sodality club rooms where dancing and singing were additional pastimes. During this period a surprise was given Sodality Director Rev. Fr. Francis J. Kuczynski and also Rev. Fr. Edward Pikulik, each being presented with a small package containing a personal gift.

Investments Show Payroll Increase

Pennsylvanians Invest $400,044,607 In Life Insurance During 1943, Commissioner Says

By JAMES H. SMITH
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, July 25—Thrifty Pennsylvanians, with an eye cast on postwar security, invested $400,044,607 in life insurance during 1943 insurance commissioner Gregg L. Neel reported today.

Neel said a report just completed disclosed that the amount invested last year was a gain of $45,115,645.39 in premiums written three years earlier.

"This huge increase in the volume of life insurance business written within this commonwealth in 1943 over 1940 again shows the natural inclination of most people to pay for their own security in the good old-fashioned American way," Neel declared.

"It goes to show," he added, "that much more money is being saved by the residents of Pennsylvania because of increased payrolls."

He said the increase demonstrated the faith and confidence of the American people in the theory of life insurance and companies founded on the American principle of free interprise."

While companies last year wrote more than 45 million dollars in net premiums and annuities over 1940 the amount of business in force during 1943 totaled $13,021,877,585, an increase of more than $1,902,000,000 over 1940, Neel's report showed.

He said 109 insurance companies were authorized to operate in Pennsylvania four years ago compared with 112 last year.

There were 10 "domestic" companies whose headquarters are in Pennsylvania; 87 "out-of-state" concerns; five "alien" companies the majority of which are located in Canada; and 10 "limited" insurance companies.

He explained that limited companies, which must meet stiff financial requirements, were authorized by the legislature to underwrite only policies having a value of less than $1000.

Either Will Do, In Dog's Opinion

CHICAGO, July 25.—(INS)—His solomon-like efforts having failed dismally, Judge Victor A. Kula sought other means today to solve the ownership of Ming Toy, a pedigreed black and tan Pekignese dog.

The judge had Ming Toy brought into court in the expectation the dog would show preference either for Marine Corp. Theodore Foss or Mrs. Dorothy McCann, 27, both of whom claimed ownership.

Instead, Ming Toy made a bee line for the doorway, paying no attention to either. Brought back later, he wagged his tail politely at each, but with fine impartiality.

Judge Kula continued the case until Thursday, saying that in the meantime he would "ring a few doorbells" to get the testimony of neighbors of the two claimants.

Predicts Democratic Revolution In Japan

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 25.—(INS)—A revolution among "the democratically minded people of Japan before the war's end" was forecast today by Lui Liangmo, former Chinese morale officer attached to the United China Relief organization.

"To insure a permanent, peaceful government in Japan," he declared, "the Allies will have to establish a temporary military rule, smash the Jap war clique, and support the Democratic elements."

Lui, who predicted Japan's fall one year after the defeat of Germany, said it would be necessary for the Allies to carry the war to the Nipponese before attaining victory.

Baby's Rest Room At Pennsy Station

NEW YORK, July 25—(INS)—Baby, a non-paying client but a frequent passenger of the American railroads, finally has won recognition at busy Penn station.

A nursery where babies may refresh themselves between trains and attend to the miscellaneous tasks of tyding up, was opened at the station. The cat and the fiddle and Bo-Peep are wall murals that cheer up the weary infants.

PFC HAS MEANING TO ALL SOLDIERS

BOUGAINVILLE—(INS)—Everyone knows the letters "P.F.C." stand for private first class. But on this island, the letters have another meaning for Marines. Sun-blackened non-coms and lean young pilots assert that their ambition is to become a "proud, fancy-free civilian."

Balance your family's menus with good

HOME CANNED FOODS

Here's how to make your family healthier, stretch your ration points and cut your food budget. Do plenty of home canning this summer and fall while the markets are brimming with fresh fruits and vegetables.

Next winter, some foods will be hard to get because of the needs of our armed forces and allies. Yet for good health, every member of your family needs at least two fruits and two vegetables a day . . . 90 quarts per person a year.

Home canning is easy to carry through—especially when you have a dependable, flexible Gas range. If you have any questions, just call on the Home Service Department of your Gas company, for sound advice.

Nothing keeps a family happier than a variety of foods . . . so let your Gas range help you can them while they're plentiful! And for best results—watch these musts:

1. Jars should be tested for a perfect seal and thoroughly washed in soapy hot water, then boiled in clear water for at least 15 minutes.

2. Examine jars and covers for cracks, nicks and dents. Do not use imperfect jars or lids.

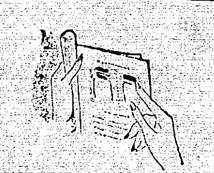

3. Be sure to expel air with a knife blade. Do not fill jars too full—allow space for boiling. Fill sterilized jars to within 1/2 inch of top for fruits, 1 inch for vegetables.

4. Wipe top of rubber free of seeds, pulp or syrup.

5. Cool all jars upright to assure perfect seals. Avoid kitchen drafts. Set to cool on surface with several thicknesses of cloth.

6. Follow canning directions carefully—this is most important.

You can still secure a copy of "Home Canning," a booklet that will see you through any canning situation . . . just write or visit your Gas Company office.

German General Is Oh So Sorry

ROME, July 25.—(INS)—Grave concern for the actions of German troops in Italy has been expressed officially by their commander, Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, officials have disclosed.

Brig Gen. Edgar Hume, chief of the fifth army's AMG, revealed that when American troops entered the Italian town of Siena, they found a proclamation signed by Kesselring which said:

"I am very sorry to see that German soldiers had so far forgotten themselves to do the things they have done.

"I, Kesselring, want the people of Siena to know they will be tried by court-martial and severely punished."

PRISONER OF WAR

GROVE CITY, July 25—Missing in action over Emden since last December 11th, Lieut. Edwin F. Pollock is a prisoner in Germany, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Pollock. No word had been received in the meantime. Lieut. Pollock was the pilot of a B-17.

Relatives of other members of the crew have added to the Red Cross information by stating that one of the fliers had written home that three were killed on the mission and four others, all hit by sharpnel, were taken prisoner.

'Hitler Salute' Used Exclusively

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—The Nazi agency DNB announced Monday that the "Hitler Salute" has been introduced throughout the German armed forces.

Hitherto, German officers and men have been free to use an ordinary military salute, although party fanatics always went through the "Heil Hitler" arrangement.

Investments Show Payroll Increase

Pennsylvanians Invest $400,044,607 In Life Insurance During 1943, Commissioner Says

By JAMES H. SMITH
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, July 25—Thrifty Pennsylvanians, with an eye cast on postwar security, invested $400,044,607 in life insurance druing 1943 insurance commissioner Gregg L. Neel reported today.

Neel said a report just completed disclosed that the amount invested last year was a gain of $45,115,645.39 in premiums written three years earlier.

"This huge increase in the volume of life insurance business written within this commonwealth in 1943 over 1940 again shows the natural inclination of most people to pay for their own security in the good old-fashioned American way," Neel declared.

"It goes to show," he added, "that much more money is being saved by the residents of Pennsylvania because of increased payrolls."

He said the increase demonstrated "the faith and confidence of the American people in the theory of life insurance and companies founded on the American principle of free interprise."

While companies last year wrote more than 45 million dollars in net premiums and annuities over 1940 the amount of business in force during 1943 totaled $13,021,877,585 an increase of more than $1,902,000,000 over 1940, Neel's report showed.

He said 109 insurance companies were authorized to operate in Pennsylvania four years ago compared with 112 last year.

There were 10 "domestic" companies whose headquarters are in Pennsylvania; 87 "out-of-state" concerns; five "alien" companies the majority of which are located in Canada; and 10 "limited" insurance companies.

He explained that limited companies, which must meet stiff financial requirements, were authorized by the legislature to underwrite only policies having a value of less than $1000.

Either Will Do, In Dog's Opinion

CHICAGO, July 25.—(INS)—His solomon-like efforts having failed dismally, Judge Victor A. Kula sought other means today to solve the ownership of Ming Toy, a pedigreed black and tan Pekignese dog.

The judge had Ming Toy brought into court in the expectation the dog would show preference either for Marine Corp. Theodore Foss or Mrs. Dorothy McCann, 27, both of whom claimed ownership.

Instead, Ming Toy made a bee line for the doorway, paying no attention to either. Brought back later, he wagged his tail politely at each, but with fine impartiality.

Judge Kula continued the case until Thursday, saying that in the meantime he would "ring a few doorbells" to get the testimony of neighbors of the two claimants.

Predicts Democratic Revolution In Japan

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 25—(INS)—A revolution among "the democratically minded people of Japan before the war's end" was forecast today by Lui Liangmo, former Chinese morale officer attached to the United China Relief organization.

"To insure a permanent, peaceful government in Japan," he declared, "the Allies will have to establish a temporary military rule, smash the Jap war clique, and support the Democratic elements."

Lui, who predicted Japan's fall one year after the defeat of Germany, said it would be necessary for the Allies to carry the war to the Nipponese before attaining victory.

Baby's Rest Room At Pennsy Station

NEW YORK, July 25.—(INS)—Baby, a non-paying client but a frequent passenger of the American railroads, finally has won recognition at busy Penn station.

A nursery where babies may refresh themselves between trains and attend to the miscellaneous tasks of tyding up, was opened at the station. The cat and the fiddle and Bo-Peep are wall murals that cheer up the weary infants.

PFC HAS MEANING TO ALL SOLDIERS

BOUGAINVILLE—(INS)—Everyone knows the letters "P.F.C." stand for private first class. But on this island, the letters have another meaning for Marines. Sun-blackened non-coms and lean young pilots assert that their ambition is to become a "proud, fancy-free civilian."

Balance your family's menus with good

HOME CANNED FOODS

Here's how to make your family healthier, stretch your ration points and cut your food budget. Do plenty of home canning this summer and fall while the markets are brimming with fresh fruits and vegetables.

Next winter, some foods will be hard to get because of the needs of our armed forces and allies. Yet for good health, every member of your family needs at least two fruits and two vegetables a day . . . 90 quarts per person a year.

Home canning is easy to carry through—especially when you have a dependable, flexible Gas range. If you have any questions, just call on the Home Service Department of your Gas company, for sound advice.

Nothing keeps a family happier than a variety of foods . . . so let your Gas range help you can them while they're plentiful! And for best results—watch these musts:

1. Jars should be tested for a perfect seal and thoroughly washed in soapy hot water, then boiled in clear water for at least 15 minutes.

2. Examine jars and covers for cracks, nicks and dents. Do not use imperfect jars or lids.

3. Be sure to expel air with a knife blade. Do not fill jars too full—allow space for boiling. Fill sterilized jars to within 1/2 inch of top for fruits, 1 inch for vegetables.

4. Wipe top of rubber free of seeds, pulp or syrup.

5. Cool all jars upright to assure perfect seals. Avoid kitchen drafts. Set to cool on surface with several thicknesses of cloth.

6. Follow canning directions carefully—this is most important.

You can still secure a copy of "Home Canning," a booklet that will see you through any canning situation . . . just write or visit your Gas Company office.

German General Is Oh So Sorry

ROME, July 25—(INS)—Grave concern for the actions of German troops in Italy has been expressed officially by their commander, Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, officials have disclosed.

Brig. Gen. Edgar Hume, chief of the fifth army's AMG, revealed that when American troops entered the Italian town of Siena, they found a proclamation signed by Kesselring which said:

"I am very sorry to see that German soldiers had so far forgotten themselves to do the things they have done.

"I, Kesselring, want the people of Siena to know they will be tried by courtmartial and severely punished."

PRISONER OF WAR

GROVE CITY, July 25—Missing in action over Emden since last December 11th, Lieut. Edwin F. Pollock is a prisoner in Germany, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Pollock. No word had been received in the meantime. Lieut. Pollock was the pilot of a B-17.

Relatives of other members of the crew have added to the Red Cross information by stating that one of the fliers had written home that three were killed on the mission and four others, all hit by shrapnel, were taken prisoner.

The water drained from cooked rice can be used as part of the liquid called for in soups, sauces and creamed mixtures.

'Hitler Salute' Used Exclusively

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—The Nazi agency DNB announced Monday that the "Hitler Salute" has been introduced throughout the German armed forces.

Hitherto, German officers and men have been free to use an ordinary military salute, although party fanatics always went through the "Heil Hitler" arrangement.

Hey, Chum! Wanna buy some nice fresh kilowatts?

IT'S not likely that a shifty, fast-talking gent will ever sidle up to you with such an offer.

Bootleggers and Black Markets exist only where there are shortages—and a chance to make big profits by breaking ceiling prices.

There are no Black Markets in electricity, nor are there any shortages.

And far from pushing against price ceilings, the price of electricity has stayed right down on the floor. In fact, over the last 15 years, the average price to the average family has been cut just about in half. Of course, you probably have more electric appliances and use more electricity today than you did then — but you're getting twice as much for your money!

Your thanks for such a big bargain belong largely to your friends and neighbors who work with this company. They're doing a better, more efficient job every year.

Many thousands of such posts—with vital communications equipment—are needed on the battlefronts of the world.

To meet these urgent needs, peacetime manufacturers of telephone equipment are producing electronic and other war communications equipment almost exclusively.

Production for everyday civilian needs has been nearly wiped out. "Margins" built into our telephone plant are just about used up.

As a result of all this, the shortages of telephone facilities—central office equipment, wire, telephones—have become so serious that "waiting lists" are lengthening daily.

No one likes to stand in line. But isn't it different when the line forms behind our fighting men?

ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!" Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I'm 82 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, going as much as 5 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Am now on my second box, and as regular as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!" Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 N. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yet, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really can, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "cellulosic" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out"! It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Archbishop Visits With General Clark At Front Lines In Italy

By FRANK CONNIFF
(U.N.S. Staff Correspondent)

AT FORWARD HEADQUARTERS of the Fifth Army in Italy, July 25.—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York flew today from Rome to the Fifth Army's forward headquarters only a few miles behind the lines and was welcomed by Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, the Fifth's commander.

The archbishop reviewed the guard formed in his honor, lunched with the general and planned to say mass in an afternoon visit to an evacuation hospital. He will visit divisions at the front tomorrow.

Spellman said reports that he talked with the Pope regarding peace conditions were "not true."

Talks With Pope

The archbishop disclosed that he had two audiences with the pope, one of them lasting 45 minutes.

Earlier today at open air ceremonies, Gen. Clark congratulated 90 soldiers and one nurse for completing their naturalization and becoming American citizens.

"You received your citizenship literally on the field of battle," he said.

Many thousands of such posts—with vital communications equipment—are needed on the battlefronts of the world.

To meet these urgent needs, peacetime manufacturers of telephone equipment are producing electronic and other war communications equipment almost exclusively.

Production for everyday civilian needs has been nearly wiped out. "Margins" built into our telephone plant are just about used up.

As a result of all this, the shortages of telephone facilities—central office equipment, wire, telephones—have become so serious that "waiting lists" are lengthening daily.

No one likes to stand in line. But isn't it different when the line forms behind our fighting men?

ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!" Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I'm 82 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, going as much as 5 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Am now on my second box, and as regular as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!" Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 N. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yet, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really can, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "cellulosic" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out"! It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Col. Gentzkow Marks 27 Years Service In Army

Deshon Hospital Commandant Has Enviable Record As Soldier-Doctor

BUTLER, Pa., July 25.—When Colonel C. J. Gentzkow, commanding officer of Deshon General hospital here, completed 27 years of service with the United States Army on July 19, he could well be proud of the 21 months since he assumed command of the new Army hospital.

Arriving here on October 26, 1942, he organized a staff, and within two weeks was ready to receive the first patients.

Colonel Gentzkow's experience with the Army Medical Corps includes serving with the Fifth Division in World War I, and with the Army of Occupation in Luxembourg and Coblenz at the end of hostilities.

During the period between the two wars, he was staff member of various Army installations as chief of the laboratory service; chief of the division of chemistry and physics of the Army Medical school, Washington, D. C., and president of the Army medical research board in Panama. He has held his present rank since June 23, 1942.

Well Known

The colonel is well known in Army medical circles for research papers in the fields of science and medicine, including studies on malaria and atabrine, and as contributor and co-editor of the fourth and fifth editions of "Laboratory Methods of the U. S. Army."

A native of Minesota, the colonel is a graduate of the State Teachers college of that state and received his M. D. degree from the medical college of George Washington university. In 1929 he was awarded a Ph. D. in biology and public health by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Fishing and photography are the hobbies of the colonel, apart from his prime interest in the hospital's work in treatment and rehabilitation of wounded soldiers.

Shortly after receiving his first lieutenant's commission in World War I he was married to Miss Marguerite Hampton of Indianapolis, Ind.

Gunner On Bomber Missing In Action

St-Sgt. Donald G. McCandless, Turret Gunner, Missing Over Germany

St-Sgt. Donald G. McCandless has been reported missing in action over Germany since July 11, according to a telegram received from the war department by his mother, Mrs. Mary McCandless, of R. D. 1.

Sgt. McCandless was wounded in action in May, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross a month ago, and the mission from which he failed to return is believed by his family to be only the second one since his discharge from the hospital.

He was turret gunner on a bomber. The missing airman had been in service about 21 months. He had been overseas for the past 13 months.

Sgt. McCandless is a former resident of Ellwood City and also has many acquaintances in New Castle. He is one of six brothers who have served with the armed forces, three still on duty overseas, two who have received medical discharges.

Pfc. Charles McCandless is in Australia, Pvt. Chester McCandless and Pvt. Raymond McCandless are in England.

Mercer To Acquire Water Properties

Solicitor Prepares Application To PUC To Take Over Water Company

MERCER, July 25—Borough Solicitor L. R. Rickard has completed the preparation of the application of the borough council to the State Public Utility Commission for permission to acquire the properties of the Mercer Water Company by purchase under the Public Authority act of 1937 and mailed it to Harrisburg. The action of the borough council is the culmination of a movement which started in 1919 at which time the commission refused the petition on the grounds that the commission did not consider the borough financially in a position to make the purchase. The agitation has been revived at different times and the recent act of Assembly provides for the purchase of the sale of bonds secured by the property of the company and its revenues without any liability of the borough through its taxes for the repayments of the bonds. The purchase price will be determined by the commission after the property has been appraised by the commission.

FISHERMEN RETURN

With a minimum of fanfare, the court house's most famous disciples of Isaac Walton slipped back on the job Monday, blaming cold weather for their lack of fish. They didn't even have a picture of the famous stuffed sturgeon that most fishermen have their picture taken with. However, they did get a good coat of tan and report that they are well rested and will be able to go through another year of labor in good physical shape. Those who spent the past two weeks at the Pennsylvania club and who returned to their duties Monday were Prothonotary John E. Edgar, Controller Andrew Dodds, Commissioner Karl Rohrer, and Custodian William McKee. Some good deals should have been made while away, as the county officials were hobnobbing with Councilman Joe D. Alexander, City Controller Dinty Moore, assistant Fire Chief George Harper, and Fireman Clyde Rorrer. The latter pair served as chief cooks and bottle washer, but tried their hand at fishing also. They were a little late in arriving on the scene, having returned to New Castle when their car broke down at Erie, and had to take running start to catch up.

HEARING ON PETITION

Evidence was being taken in court Monday at a hearing before Judge John G. Lamoree, on the petition of Earl V. English, of 943 Beaver avenue, Ellwood City, who appeals for the removal of suspension of his operator's license ordered suspended for a month by the bureau of highway safety, following an accident.

On June 19, English's petition of appeal was granted, and a hearing date was set for July 24, the appeal serving as a supersedeas requiring that the defendant would not have to surrender his operator's license pending disposition of the appeal.

English has been driver of a motor coach for the Ellwood City Motor Coach Company, and according to the evidence, his bus collided with a truck owned and operated by Clayton Ketterer, of R. D. 1, New Brighton, loaded with green timbers, which extended out too far across the highway, resulting in one of the timbers striking the front of the bus, smashing in a window, and injuring five persons. English claims that the timbers extended beyond the center line of the highway. The collision occurred near Ellport on a 16-foot highway.

Col. Gentzkow Marks 27 Years Service In Army

Deshon Hospital Commandant Has Enviable Record As Soldier-Doctor

BUTLER, Pa., July 25.—When Colonel C. J. Gentzkow, commanding officer of Deshon General hospital here, completed 27 years of service with the United States Army on July 19, he could well be proud of the 21 months since he assumed command of the new Army hospital.

Arriving here on October 26, 1942, he organized a staff, and within two weeks was ready to receive the first patients.

Colonel Gentzkow's experience with the Army Medical Corps includes serving with the Fifth Division in World War I, and with the Army of Occupation in Luxembourg and Coblenz at the end of hostilities.

During the period between the two wars, he was staff member of various Army installations as chief of the laboratory service; chief of the division of chemistry and physics of the Army Medical school, Washington, D. C., and president of the Army medical research board in Panama. He has held his present rank since June 23, 1942.

Well Known

The colonel is well known in Army medical circles for research papers in the fields of science and medicine, including studies on malaria and atabrine, and as contributor and co-editor of the fourth and fifth editions of "Laboratory Methods of the U. S. Army".

A native of Minesota, the colonel is a graduate of the State Teachers college of that state and received his M. D. degree from the medical college of George Washington university. In 1929 he was awarded a Ph. D. in biology and public health by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Fishing and photography are the hobbies of the colonel, apart from his prime interest in the hospital's work in treatment and rehabilitation of wounded soldiers.

Shortly after receiving his first lieutenant's commission in World War I he was married to Miss Marguerite Hampton of Indianapolis, Ind.

He was turret gunner on a bomber. The missing airman had been in service about 21 months. He had been overseas for the past 13 months.

Sgt. McCandless is a former resident of Ellwood City and also has many acquaintances in New Castle. He is one of six brothers who have served with the armed forces, three still on duty overseas, two who have received medical discharges.

Mercer To Acquire Water Properties

Solicitor Prepares Application To PUC To Take Over Water Company

MERCER, July 25—Borough Solicitor L. R. Rickard has completed the preparation of the application of the borough council to the State Public Utility Commission for permission to acquire the properties of the Mercer Water Company by purchase under the Public Authority act of 1937 and mailed it to Harrisburg. The action of the borough council is the culmination of a movement which started in 1919 at which time the commission refused the petition on the grounds that the commission did not consider the borough financially in a position to make the purchase. The agitation has been revived at different times and the recent act of Assembly provides for the purchase of the sale of bonds secured by the property of the company and its revenues with out any liability of the borough through its taxes for the repayments of the bonds. The purchase price will be determined by the commission after the property has been appraised by the commission.

Outward bound for "somewhere"

"I'd rather be with them— than waiting for them"

I'LL ADMIT there's a funny lump in my throat . . .

But here I am, loaded with my overseas pack, climbing up the side of the biggest boat I've ever seen—and glad of it.

Glad I said "good-by" to civilian life months ago—and went into the WAC. Glad I went through all the training and on to active duty.

For, as a Wac, I'm really working for victory. Sharing the hard part of war. And the glory that will come.

I'd rather be with them—in the Army . . .

Than waiting back home—thinking up things to make the time go by—listening to the news—wondering when it'll all be over.

Yes, I'm in the Army and on my way—and I'm glad to the bottom of my heart!

FISHERMEN RETURN

With a minimum of fanfare, the court house's most famous disciples of Isaac Walton slipped back on the job Monday, blaming cold weather for their lack of fish. They didn't even have a picture of the famous stuffed sturgeon that most fishermen have their picture taken with. However, they did get a good coat of tan and report that they are well rested and will be able to go through another year of labor in good physical shape. Those who spent the past two weeks at the Pennsylvania club and who returned to their duties Monday were Prothonotary John E. Edgar, Controller Andrew Dodds, Commissioner Karl Rohrer, and Custodian William McKee. Some good deals should have been made while away, as the county officials were hobnobbing with Councilman Joe D. Alexander, City Controller Dinty Moore, assistant Fire Chief George Harper, and Fireman Clyde Roarer. The latter pair served as chief cooks and bottle washer, but tried their hand at fishing also. They were a little late in arriving on the scene, having returned to New Castle when their car broke down at Erie, and had to take running start to catch up.

HEARING ON PETITION

Evidence was being taken in court Monday at a hearing before Judge John G. Lamoree, on the petition of Earl V. English, of 913 Beaver avenue, Ellwood City, who appeals for the removal of suspension of his operator's license, ordered suspended for a month by the bureau of highway safety, following an accident.

On June 19, English's petition of appeal was granted, and a hearing date was set for July 24, the appeal serving as a supersedeas requiring that the defendant would not have to surrender his operator's license pending disposition of the appeal.

English has been driver of a motor coach for the Ellwood City Motor Coach Company, and according to the evidence, his bus collided with a truck owned and operated by Clayton Keterrer, of R. D. 1, New Brighton, loaded with green timbers, which extended out too far across the highway, resulting in one of the timbers striking the front of the bus, smashing in a window, and injuring five persons. English claims that the timbers extended beyond the center line of the highway. The collision occurred near Ellport on a 16-foot highway.

Dewey To Plumb West Sentiment

Wants To Get First Hand Information On Western States

By LEO W. O'BRIEN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

ALBANY, N. Y., July 25.—(INS)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, intends to see for himself whether the middle west is as strongly behind him as Republican leaders from that section told him at and since the GOP national convention.

That was reported to be one of the reasons behind the change in the itinerary for his St. Louis trip next week to include a day-long stop at Springfield, Ill., on Aug. 1. He will talk there with Republican leaders and members of the Republican congressional delegation from Illinois. He also will meet with representatives of labor, business and agriculture to learn their views on postwar reconversion to a peacetime production basis.

The Republican nominee will be absent from New York state for six days on his first post-convention tour. He will leave New York City on the night of July 30, spend the following day in Pittsburgh, leave Pittsburgh on the night of July 31, spend August 1 in Springfield and continue on either that night or the following morning to St. Louis, where he will meet August 2 and 3 with the Republican governors of 25 other states.

Another change in plans will keep him in St. Louis through Aug. 4, when he will talk with Republican members of Congress from Missouri. As in Pittsburgh and Springfield, he will meet at St. Louis with persons whose views he desires on the postwar reconversion subject, to which he intends to devote at least one of his major campaign speeches.

OFFENSIVE BEGUN FROM BOTH ENDS OF FRENCH FRONT

Mitchell bombers which lashed at the German positions only 2,000 yards in front of British troops, cut loose with their assault in the early morning.

A frontline Reuter dispatch said that Canadian units had advanced a mile by 7 a. m. to reach the villages of May-Sur-Orne, Varieres and Tilly-La campagne.)

Yanks Advance

The Americans struck shortly before noon and initial accounts said the Yanks were advancing against heavy German resistance.

Both Allied armies had formidable air support over the battle area where excellent flying weather prevailed.

Word of the American assault, timed to break only a few hours after the British had begun to march, came directly from First Army headquarters in France after the regular communique from supreme headquarters had announced the British attack below Caen.

(According to a Reuter correspondent at the front, formations of the German air force came over to strafe and bomb the British as the infantry leaped forward."

Dempsey Forces

The assault forces of Lieut. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey attacked astride the road running south from Caen in the direction of Falaise, some 20 miles distant.

First reports indicate that some progress has already been made, a communique from supreme headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said.

RAF Mitchells at dusk last night and again at dawn this morning attacked German concentrations in the La Hogue Wood southeast of Caen, preparatory to the start of the ground assault and in support of the push once it got underway.

Excellent weather prevailed over the battlefront today, assuring the attacking forces of the 21st Army Group of continued heavy air support.

(Commenting on the artillery blasting which preceded the fresh British thrust at the eastern end of the Normandy battlefront, a German radio correspondent said "the enemy drumfire barrage is whipping and writhing the soil into a frenzy.

Dewey To Plumb West Sentiment

By LEO W. O'BRIEN
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ALBANY, N. Y., July 25.—(INS)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, intends to see for himself whether the middle west is as strongly behind him as Republican leaders from that section told him at and since the GOP national convention.

That was reported to be one of the reasons behind the change in the itinerary for his St. Louis trip next week to include a day-long stop at Springfield, Ill., on Aug. 1. He will talk there with Republican leaders and members of the Republican congressional delegation from Illinois. He also will meet with representatives of labor, business and agriculture to learn their views on postwar reconversion to a peacetime production basis.

The Republican nominee will be absent from New York state for six days on his first post-convention tour. He will leave New York City on the night of July 30, spend the following day in Pittsburgh; leave Pittsburgh on the night of July 31, spend August 1 in Springfield, and continue on either that night or the following morning to St. Louis, where he will meet August 2 and 3 with the Republican governors of 25 other states.

Another change in plans will keep him in St. Louis through Aug. 4, when he will talk with Republican members of Congress from Missouri. As in Pittsburgh and Springfield, he will meet at St. Louis with persons whose views he desires on the postwar reconversion subject, to which he intends to devote at least one of his major campaign speeches.

Mitchell bombers which lashed at the German positions only 2,000 yards in front of British troops, cut loose with their assault in the early morning.

A frontline Reuter dispatch said that Canadian units had advanced a mile by 7 a. m. to reach the villages of May-Sur-Orne, Varieres and Tilly-La campagne.)

Yanks Advance

The Americans struck shortly before noon and initial accounts said the Yanks were advancing against heavy German resistance.

Both Allied armies had formidable air support over the battle area where excellent flying weather prevailed.

Word of the American assault, timed to break only a few hours after the British had begun to march, came directly from First Army headquarters in France after the regular communique from supreme headquarters had announced the British attack below Caen.

(According to a Reuter correspondent at the front formations of the German air force came over to strafe and bomb the British as the infantry leaped forward.)

Dempsey Forces

The assault forces of Lieut. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey attacked astride the road running south from Caen in the direction of Falaise, some 20 miles distant.

First reports indicate that some progress has already been made, a communique from supreme headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said.

RAF Mitchells at dusk last night and again at dawn this morning attacked German concentrations in the La Hogue Wood southeast of Caen, preparatory to the start of the ground assault and in support of the push once it got underway.

The concentrations of enemy forces were only 2,000 yards from front British positions.

Excellent weather prevailed over the battlefront today, assuring the attacking forces of the 21st Army Group of continued heavy air support.

(Commenting on the artillery blasting which preceded the fresh British thrust at the eastern end of the Normandy battlefront, a German radio correspondent said "the enemy drumfire barrage is whiping and writhing the soil into a frenzy.

Commander Modl Assures Hitler

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—The German Transkontinent agency in a transmission heard by Reuter's said today that Field Marshal Modl, commander-in-chief of German army groups on the eastern front, had sent a telegram pledging loyalty to Adolf Hitler.

It was the first such message received by Hitler from any German commander on the Russian front since the attempt on his life.

Eden Is Avoiding Nazi Revolt Yarn

Admonishes British People Not To Jump At Conclusions Too Quick

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—In a cautiously worded statement, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that available information on "recent dramatic developments" in Germany does not warrant an official British government declaration.

The information at the government's disposal was not yet sufficient to enable an estimate of the full extent of the trouble nor could inferences be drawn on likely developments, Eden said.

Facts Not Known

The German government has been at great pains to conceal information about the true situation, Eden said, adding:

"They have had great experience and skill in the machinery of repression and secrecy and we are therefore for the present dependent on our assessment on various and often contradictory public statements during the last few days by German leaders."

While the allies could justly draw encouragement from the recent news, Eden added, it should spur them to further activity to ensure Germany's final defeat in the field at the earliest moment. The house cheered this statement.

New Castle Kiwanis club will have the usual meeting Wednesday noon in The Castleton. Due to a last minute change, the program originally planned will not be presented, but Program Chairman Harry Barby promises something good for the occasion. Those who enjoyed the ladies night program last week will be pleased to learn that another such event is planned for August, which will be in the form of a corn roast at the Y. M. C. A. camp.

Barbara Fighting For Son's Custody

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—(INS)—Complete custody of their eight-year-old son, Lance, was asked today in a suit filed by Barbara Hutton Granard, Woolworth heiress, against her former husband, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow.

Superior Judge Myron Westover late yesterday signed an order permitting the heiress, now wife of Actor Carry Grant, to serve the complaint on Haugwitz-Reventlow by publication.

The count and Lance are now in Vancouver, B. C., where the count took the boy on the eve of his scheduled return to his mother under an intermittent custody agreement.

Barbara Fighting For Son's Custody

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—(INS)—Complete custody of their eight-year-old son, Lance, was asked today in a suit filed by Barbara Hutton Grant, Woolworth heiress, against her former husband, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow.

She accused him of assaulting the boy and of once exerting an "almost hypnotic" influence over her by which, she said she believed, he hoped to get control of her multi-million dollar fortune.

Superior Judge Myron Westover late yesterday signed an order permitting the heiress, now wife of Actor Carry Grant, to serve the complaint on Haugwitz-Reventlow by publication.

The count and Lance are now in Vancouver, B. C., where the count took the boy on the eve of his scheduled return to his mother under an intermittent custody agreement.

Landis Is About Ready To Retire As Baseball Head

Who Will Get Coveted $100,000 Per Year Post? Question Up In Air

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Everybody had been circling around the story for a long time, much as might some third rate pugilists sparring warily for an opening.

It wasn't until Saturday, in fact that anyone saw fit to lead with a punch. And then it was only a sort of left jab in which a local pillar of light and palladium of truth pointed out that Judge K. M. Landis would soon be 70, or some such; and directly after that, danged if he would not be 80, at which point it might occur to him to retire as commissioner of professional baseball.

The story, as we say, has been around for a long time. That Landis was of a mind to move out soon, and that certain successors were being spoken of. Don't ask us who was doing the speaking since it isn't considered good Parcheesi to blather about a man's successors until he's definitely and safely out of the way.

Mention Chicagoan

One of those most persistently named was a Chicago public-office holder, the last version on him being that he was to be appointed deputy commissioner, make public appearances, kiss babies, pass out the cigars and all that sort of tosh. But this man is currently tied in very conspicuously in a political campaign and couldn't possibly allow his name to be used in connection with a possible baseball appointment.

"Besides," one member of the Yankee's official family pointed out today, "He wouldn't have the support of enough clubs," one judging from this remark that among others he wouldn't have the support of the New York Yankees.

The local pillar didn't say so, but the fact is that the Yankees were in a very large measure responsible for the appointment of Landis, with complete and arbitrary powers. The local pillar, in fact, attributed the appointment to the 1919 baseball scandal, which was certainly a factor. Indeed, it was the climax itself.

Farley Mentioned

But Ban Johnson was on his way out, and Landis or somebody was coming in, long before the grevous episode of the stolen series. And the Yankees, with their Carl Hays controversy, were one of the more abiding causes leading up to the event.

By the way, James A. Farley's name somehow got coupled with Landis' job the other day. . . Quite without Farley's knowledge or consent. In fact, when he heard about it, he was definitely alarmed, which is understandable because that soft drink job is one he happens to like for several reasons, including the supposed $100,000-a-year he's understood to get out of it.

We may add (or need we?) that there's nothing more alarming than the sum of $100,000 that (because somebody used your name in the wrong place) you might stop getting.

CAMPFIRE CORNER

By Jack Welch

TRADITIONS IN LURES

"Frogs aren't much good around here," remarked the Old Timer the other day. "Bass won't take anything but minnies or plugs."

"But," I observed to myself, "a bass is a bass no matter where you find him, and I've known times when they wouldn't strike at anything but a lively frog cast from the boat or still-fished or drift-fished over the side." There were a number of small green frogs about a marshy strip of shore some distance down the lake, so by way of experiment I captured half a dozen and proceeded to test the Old Timer's dogma.

In a little while I had a couple of medium-sized bass and a northern pike. Maybe the fish were biting unusually well at the time and would take most anything, or perhaps the Old Timer was a little off the track, despite his familiarity with local conditions. It's peculiar though, how fishermen of some localities and even whole states stress one bait almost to the exclusion of others. Probably some pioneer fisherman caught a big string of bass on minnows in this locality and thus established a tradition, with the result that frogs had never been given a thorough try-out.

"Phantom Fishing"

Another and more broadly applied instance of innovations producing results is written in the history of bigmouth bass fishing in Florida. Half a century ago, and probably up until 35 years ago, taking of bass in interior waters was confined largely to the "phantom fishing" method. Armed with a long bamboo pole, one fisherman took his place well forward the bow of a flat-bottomed boat. From the pole dangled a short length of line, to the end of which was attached a small artifical minnow made of rubber and fitted with hooks.

As his companion in the stern paddled the boat—they didn't often use oars—the bow fisherman would skitter the "phantom" lure across the surface of the water, and from side to side in front of the boat. Plenty of large bass leaped for such lures. The big ones were more plentiful in those days than now, some of them going well over 20 pounds.

Then along came bait-casting and fly rod fishing, both introduced, I believe, by tourists from the north. These methods were productive, too, and the entire complexion of Florida bass fishing changed.

Usually local methods are most effective, but it's sometimes interesting to try something different. You may hit the jack pot.

Pirates Edged By Dodgers 12-7

Pittsburgh Blows 7 To 2 Lead In Wild Brooklyn Game

By JOHN CASHMAN
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, one of the better teams in the National league, were in third place today after being dropped from second by a band of failures who, at this point, have won three games in their last 24 starts—the Brooklyn Dodgers.

This ironic circumstance was effected last night before a slim crowd of 9,072, which was stunned by the uncommon spectacle of the Dodgers crowding nine runs into the seventh inning as they toppled the Pirates, 12 to 7.

Everything had been running in its accustomed groove until the Dodgers woke up for the first time in six weeks. The Pirates had eased Cal McLish off the mound with a six-run fifth inning which gave Rip Sewell a 7 to 3 edge. In the seventh however, 14 Dodgers paraded to the plate, 10 men batting before the eleventh created the first out.

Sewell Is Loser

Sewell, who took the loss, was replaced by Nick Strincevich. Charley Fuchs was given his first Brooklyn victory after relieving McLish in the sixth.

Aside from the Dodgers unexpected revival, there was nothing spectacularly new in the National league. The Cards kept on winning, of course, with their third straight triumph over the Boston Braves, 7 to 7. Jim Tobin was nudged off the rubber by Johnny Hopp's sixth-inning homer and Slats Marion came through with three doubles to aid Ted Wilks in getting his eighth win in nine starts on a neat five-hitter.

A four-run drive in the eighth inning helped the New York Giants whip the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 3.

Yanks Take Win

In the American league, the New York Yankees kept close to the leading gate of the St. Louis Browns with an 11 to 5 triumph over the Chicago White Sox in a night encounter.

The Browns gained an even break in the four-game series with the fighting Boston Red Sox by edging out the Beantown boys, 6 to 5.

Indians Win

Every Indian clouted at least one hit as Cleveland trounced the Washington Senators 10 to 1. Early Wynn was reached for 15 hits.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Ed "Strangler" Lewis is on a tour of 60 U. S. army and navy establishments, heading a troupe of grunters which includes "Babe" Sharkey, Henry Piers, Mike Demitre, Billy Smith and The Great Milo as tourists with the 53-year-old Lewis. The team claims to have wrestled more than 100,000 servicemen during their demonstrations. Lewis was an instructor in what then was called trench work, at Camp Grant, Ill., during World War I.

In a recent baseball game between Fort Leonard Wood (Mo.) Station hospital's team and the Crocker (Mo.) club the Crocker hurler struck out nine of the fort's medics in one inning. The Crocker regular catcher was forced to leave the game because of an injury. His substitute had difficulty holding third strikes.

On uniforms of the 285th Field Artillery Observation battalion baseball team in the Fort Sill (Okla.) baseball league is lettered Scranton. Explanation of the Scranton label on the soldiers' uniforms is that they were supplied by Scranton (Pa.) baseball and fight fans. Staff Sgt. Palmer Liberatore, infielder of the team, in writing Chic Feldman, sports editor of the Scranton Tribune, told that the 285th wanted to enter a team in the fort's league but lacked uniforms necessary to league participation. Feldman and other Scranton sportsmen organized a boxing show at which money for the 285th uniforms was raised.

Operating on a "you-can-shoot-if-you-can-furnish-your-own-shotgun-shells" basis, trapshooting's 45th annual world series—the Grand American tournament—will be held as usual at the permanent home of the Amateur Trapshooting Association at Dayton, O., August 23, 24 and 25. In a nation that has proved in the rigors of war its devotion to marksmanship, this event has been, since 1900, the No. 1 clay target event of the world and it has come along annually without interruption.

Marine Pvt. Ed Meyer of Philadelphia was nominatet totay by Coach Ray Dickison for the No. 1 spot on the Penn State tennis team. The Lions will face Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., Satortay in the only match on the summer schedule.

Meyer, winner in six of seven matches this spring and Atlantic coast singles champion last year, is one of three players remaining from last semester. The others are Bob Tuttle of Pittsburgh and Ed Perry of Springfield, Ill. Both are V-12 trainees.

Pauline Rugh Smith, who created a stir last fall when she took over the football coaching reins at Bellaire high school, reportedly is thru with the game. Friends of the former Penn State coed, who has since been married to Wenroy Smith, also an alumnus of Penn State, say she will continue teaching but will no longer coach football. Her team failed to win a game in 1943.

Highland U. P. vs. First Christians.
First Baptist vs. Epworth.

Herb. Jones Best Of Young Riders

Herb Jones Out Of West Ranked With Sloane, Sande, Meade

By PAT ROBINSON
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25—The most popular jockey to come out of the west in many a moon is little Herb Jones, a modest 18-year-old lad from California, who in one short week has already attracted a large following among the punters of the east.

Bill Whisenant, an old time jockey who has been valeting other jockeys for the last 40 years, says Jones has a "sweet pair of hands and the prettiest seat on a horse I've ever seen," and Bill has seen them all from Tod Sloane, Earl Sande, Laverne Fator down to Eddie Arcaro and the present day leaders of the saddle.

"This kid," says Bill, "is going places and within a few years you'll be rating him right along with the best who ever threw a leg over a horse."

Are Better Riders

Herb says he finds the going tougher here than out west. "They're better riders in the east," he explained. "They use their head more than the boys out west. Out there, they're all rough riders and they're liable to knock you right over the fence. Here they do plenty to you and your horse but they do it in such a way you can't find anything to complain about although you know you're getting the works. They pocket you gently here. No rough stuff. If you don't keep your eyes open, first thing you know, somebody's eased you into a nice little pocket, and he's going to keep you there."

Herb is essentially a hand finisher but he can use the whip if necessary. He used to stand up when he went to the bat but the older boys quickly showed him the advantage of sticking to his saddle while plying the whip.

Tends To Business

Oh, yes, the old heads are willing to point out many a little detail like this to him but once they're all out on the track together and the chips are down, all friendship ceases and they don't hesitate to give him the business if they can. And that's as it should be.

He was galloping horses for his father, C. S. Curly Jones, when only five years old and at seven he actually was putting race horses over the jumps. He got his first mount in a regular race at Agua Caliente last August 15 on one of C. S. Howard's horses, Civil Code, which he booted home in front.

Unlike many other jockey, he sleeps at the stable and never goes near Broadway which would indicate that the youngster has a head on his shoulders as well as a "sweet pair of hands and the prettiest seat" Wisemant has ever seen.

The Machinists climbed on Snyder for 14 hits, with four homers being smacked as follows: Nanny Pregas, "Shorty" Bonk and Gabby DeCaprio. Colello had a triple and double for the winners.

Two More Years For Jim Dykes

White Sox Squelch Dismissal Rumors By New Contract

CHICAGO, July 25.—(INS)—Persistent reports that Manager Jimmy Dykes was to quit the Chicago White Sox at the end of this season and sign with some other major league club effectually were squelched today by the announcement he had signed for two more years with the Sox.

The scrappy manager now is serving the last year of a three-year contract under which he is reported to receive $27,500 annually. Whether the new contract for 1945 and 1946 ups this amount was not disclosed.

Two More Years

Mrs. Grace Comiskey, White Sox president, made the announcement that Dykes, who already has broken all records for length of service as skipper for the club, had signed to stay on for another two years. Both she and Dykes said they were pleased with the arrangement.

Dykes is in his eleventh year as manager of the Sox, the longest term by far of any Sox manager, as none of predecessors ever had served more than five seasons. Only Connie Mack of the Athletics and Joe McCarthy of the Yankees surpass him as manager of a big league team in respect to successive seasons.

For several weeks there have been repeated reports that Dykes would sign with the Phillies, the Dodgers or the Pirates. Each time Dykes was questioned he denied he even had been approached. He started with the Sox May 8, 1934, as successor to Lew Fonseca.

Negro Fighter Is Still Unconscious

NEWARK, N. J., July 25.—(INS)—Lem Franklin, Chicago Negro heavyweight, who was knocked out by Larry Lane, Trenton, N. J., last night, was still unconscious and reported on the critical list at City hospital today.

Franklin was winning the fight when in the ninth round Lane landed a stiff punch to the jaw and Franklin fell striking his head hard on the ring floor.

He was unconscious for an hour but recovered consciousness in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. Later he again lost consciousness. The hospital today said his condition showed a slight improvement.

Savold And Baksi Commence Training

CHICAGO, July 25—(INS)—Lee Savold of Paterson, N. J., and Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., began training today for their 10-round heavyweight bout August 7 in Wrigley field.

Sugar Robinson Returns To Ring

Discharged From Army He May Box Frenchman In First Bout

PURSE WILL ASSIST SERVICEMEN'S BUDGET

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Probably the greatest welterweight fighter of our time, Sugar Ray Robinson, is coming back to boxing and will appear in a Chicago ring, very likely within two months and not later than three. He also will make appearances in Boston, here at the Garden and probably in Detroit. So much for the bare essentials of the situation. Now for the details:

Robinson, who went into the army some 14 months ago, has received an honorable discharge and is back in civilian life . . . though that fact is known to comparatively few people.

His series of fights, therefore, will serve first to present him with an element of novelty to the American people; and secondly, will divert a good deal of what is known as legal tender into the service men's recreation fund. This fund is to share generously in the receipts of the various Robinson fights listed above.

In addition, the fighter himself has gratuitously offered to donate 20 per cent of his Garden purse to the service men's budget, a contribution that's certain to be no inconsiderable item.

They gang the Garden runways nowadays for a couple of casabas who can't fight their way out of a paper bag. For Robinson's re-entry into boxing, they'll probably pay a gross well over $100,000.

May Fight Frenchman

He may box Marcel Cerdan. Marcel isn't known to any great extent in the middle west, but here he's considered quite a fellow, what with Jack Sharkey, the ex-heavyweight champion, doing a race about the guy upon his recent return from an overseas tour of military bases. Cerdan was fighting at the famous Palais D'Sports, operated by the late Jeff Dickson in Paris, before the war. More recently, he won the inter-allied welterweight title behind the lines in Algiers, where Sharkey first saw him.

The Robinson tour will have its premiere in Boston some time early in the fall, probably with Izzy Jannazzo who's strictly from furore with the natives up there.

Robinson perhaps will be tough. And incidentally we've been warned not to imagine that he can't do just about anything he sets his mind to nowadays.

They say, in fact, that . . . what with excellent army food and stern army discipline, plus the Joe Louis tour . . . he's half again the man he was before he went in.

Former Gridiron Star Is Prisoner

Ray Frick, Ex-Penn All-American, Held By Germans, Is Report

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—(INS)—Lt. Ray Frick, former All-American and captain of the University of Pennsylvania's 1940 bi-centenial varsity, is a prisoner of war in Germany, according to word received today from his mother.

Mrs. Frick was notified by the war department that Ray was reported missing on July 9. Later she learned that her son made a forced landing in Germany and was taken prisoner.

Frick was an all-state center at Bloomfield (N. J.) high school and subsequently held down center position on three Penn elevens. Considered one of the best pivot men ever turned out by the Red and Blue, Frick signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers professional football club and then enlisted in the Marines in 1942. Later he transferred to the air corp and went overseas last spring.

Landis Is About Ready To Retire As Baseball Head

Who Will Get Coveted $100,000 Per Year Post? Question Up In Air

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Everybody had been circling around the story for a long time, much as might some third rate pugilists sparring warily for an opening.

It wasn't until Saturday, in fact that anyone saw fit to lead with a punch. And then it was only a sort of left jab, in which a local pillar of light and palladium of truth pointed out that Judge K. M. Landis would soon be 79, or some such; and directly after that, danged if he would not be 80, at which point it might occur to him to retire as commissioner of professional baseball.

The story, as we say, has been around for a long time. . . That Landis was of a mind to move out soon, and that certain successors were being spoken of. Don't ask us who was doing the speaking since it isn't considered good Parchest to blather about a man's successors until he's definitely and safely out of the way.

Mention Chicagoan

One of those most persistently named was a Chicago public-office holder, the last version on him being that he was to be appointed deputy commissioner, make public appearances, kiss babies, pass out the cigars and all that sort of tosh. But this man is currently tied in very conspicuously in a political campaign and couldn't possibly allow his name to be used in connection with a possible baseball appointment.

"Besides," one member of the Yankee's official family pointed out today, "He wouldn't have the support of enough clubs," one judging from this remark that among others he wouldn't have the support of the New York Yankees.

The local pillar didn't say so, but the fact is that the Yankees were in a very large measure responsible for the appointment of Landis, with complete and arbitrary powers. The local pillar, in fact, attributed the appointment to the 1919 baseball scandal, which was certainly a factor. Indeed, it was the climax itself.

Farley Mentioned

But Ban Johnson was on his way out, and Landis or somebody was coming in, long before the grevous episode of the stolen series. And the Yankees, with their Carl Hays controversy, were one of the more abiding causes leading up to the event.

By the way, James A. Farley's name somehow got coupled with Landis' job the other day. . . Quite without Farley's knowledge or consent. In fact, when he heard about it, he was definitely alarmed, which is understandable because that soft drink job is one he happens to like for several reasons, including the supposed $100,000-a-year he's understood to get out of it.

We may add (or need we?) that there's nothing more alarming than the sum of $100,000 that (because somebody used your name in the wrong place) you might stop getting.

CAMPFIRE CORNER

By JACK WELCH

TRADITIONS IN LURES

"Frogs aren't much good around here," remarked the Old Timer the other day. "Bass won't take anything but minnies or plugs."

"But," I observed to myself, "a bass is a bass no matter where you find him, and I've known times when they wouldn't strike at anything but a lively frog, cast from the boat or still-fished or drift-fished over the side." There were a number of small green frogs about a marshy strip of shore some distance down the lake, so by way of experiment I captured half a dozen and proceeded to test the Old Timer's dogma.

In a little while I had a couple of medium-sized bass and a northern pike. Maybe the fish were biting unusually well at the time and would take most anything, or perhaps the Old Timer was a little off the track, despite his familiarity with local conditions. It's peculiar though, how fishermen of some localities and even whole states stress one bait almost to the exclusion of others. Probably some pioneer fisherman caught a big string of bass on minnows in this locality and thus established a tradition, with the result that frogs had never been given a thorough try-out.

"Phantom Fishing"

Another and more broadly applied instance of innovations producing results is written in the history of bigmouth bass fishing in Florida. Half a century ago, and probably up until 35 years ago, taking of bass in interior waters was confined largely to the "phantom fishing" method. Armed with a long bamboo pole, one fisherman took his place well toward the bow of a flat-bottomed boat. From the pole dangled a short length of line, to the end of which was attached a small artifical minnow made of rubber and fitted with hooks.

As his companion in the stern paddled the boat—they didn't often use oars—the bow fisherman would skitter the "phantom" lure across the surface of the water, and from side to side, in front of the boat. Plenty of large bass leaped for such lures. The big ones were more plentiful in those days than now, some of them going well over 20 pounds.

Then along came bait-casting and fly rod fishing, both introduced, I believe, by tourists from the north. These methods were productive, too, and the entire complexion of Florida bass fishing changed.

Usually local methods are most effective, but it's sometimes interesting to try something different. You may hit the jack pot.

Golf Leaguers Meet On Tourney

Sylvan Heights Players Will Further Plans Following Matches Wednesday Evening

Sylvan Heights Golf league managers and players will have a meeting following the league matches at the course Wednesday evening, when they will further plans for the public links open tournament for players from Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania at the beautiful local course Sunday, August 13.

President Frank Summers states that plans are now well along for the event, and invitations have been sent to clubs within a radius of 100 miles of the city.

Those who have not completed the course should be present. The club proposes to hold a corn roast soon. An outdoor range will be discussed by President Howard Schweinsberg. Charles Schweinsberg was high with 96 last week. Bill McKee scored 93, Frank George 89, James Allen 86, and Charles Brunton 82.

Pirates Edged By Dodgers 12-7

Pittsburgh Blows 7 To 2 Lead In Wild Brooklyn Game

By JOHN CASHMAN
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25.—The Pittsburgh Pirates, one of the better teams in the National league, were in third place today after being dropped from second by a band of failures who, at this point, have won three games in their last 24 starts—the Brooklyn Dodgers.

This ironic circumstance was effected last night before a slim crowd of 9,072, which was stunned by the uncommon spectacle of the Dodgers crowding nine runs into the seventh inning as they toppled the Pirates, 12 to 7.

Everything had been running in its accustomed groove until the Dodgers woke up for the first time in six weeks. The Pirates had eased Cal McLish off the mound with a six-run fifth inning which gave Rip Sewell a 7 to 3 edge. In the seventh however, 14 Dodgers paraded to the plate, 10 men batting before the eleventh created the first out.

Sewell Is Loser

Sewell, who took the loss, was replaced by Nick Strincevich. Charley Fuchs was given his first Brooklyn victory after relieving McLish in the sixth.

Aside from the Dodgers' unexpected revival, there was nothing spectacularly new in the National league. The Cards kept on winning, of course, with their third straight triumph over the Boston Braves, 7 to 7. Jim Tobin was nudged off the rubber by Johnny Hopp's sixth-inning homer and Slats Marion came through with three doubles to aid Ted Wilks in getting his eighth win in nine starts on a neat five-hitter.

A four-run drive in the eighth inning helped the New York Giants whip the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 3.

Yanks Take Win

In the American league, the New York Yankees kept close to the leading gate of the St. Louis Browns with an 11 to 5 triumph over the Chicago White Sox in a night encounter.

The Browns gained an even break in the four-game series with the fighting Boston Red Sox by edging out the Beantown boys, 6 to 5.

Indians Win

Every Indian clouted at least one hit as Cleveland trounced the Washington Senators, 10 to 1. Early Wynn was reached for 15 hits.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Ed "Strangler" Lewis is on a tour of 60 U. S. army and navy establishments, heading a troupe of grunters which includes "Babe" Sharkey, Henry Piers, Mike Demitre, Billy Smith and The Great Milo as tourists with the 53-year-old Lewis. The team claims to have wrestled more than 100,000 servicemen during their demonstrations. Lewis was an instructor in what then was called trench work, at Camp Grant, Ill., during World War I.

In a recent baseball game between Fort Leonard Wood (Mo.) Station hospital's team and the Crocker (Mo.) club the Crocker hurler struck out nine of the fort's medics in one inning. The Crocker regular catcher was forced to leave the game because of an injury. His substitute had difficulty holding third strikes.

On uniforms of the 285th Field Artillery Observation battalion baseball team in the Fort Sill (Okla.) baseball league is lettered Scranton. Explanation of the Scranton label on the soldiers' uniforms is that they were supplied by Scranton (Pa.) baseball and fight fans. Staff Sgt. Palmer Liberatore, infielder of the team, in writing Chic Feldman, sports editor of the Scranton Tribune, told that the 285th wanted to enter a team in the fort's league but lacked uniforms necessary to league participation. Feldman and other Scranton sportsmen organized a boxing show at which money for the 285th uniforms was raised.

Operating on a "you-can-shoot-if-you-can-furnish-your-own-shotgun-shells" basis, trapshooting's 45th annual world series—the Grand American tournament—will be held as usual at the permanent home of the Amateur Trapshooting Association at Dayton, O., August 23, 24 and 25. In a nation that has proved in the rigors of war its devotion to marksmanship, this event has been, since 1900, the No. 1 clay target event of the world and it has come along annually without interruption.

Marine Pvt. Ed Meyer of Philadelphia was nominatet totay by Coach Ray Dickison for the No. 1 spot on the Penn State tennis team. The Lions will face Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., Satortay in the only match on the summer schedule.

Meyer, winner in six of seven matches this spring and Atlantic coast singles champion last year, is one of three players remaining from last semester. The others are Bob Tuttle of Pittsburgh and Ed Perry of Springfield, Ill. Both are V-12 trainees.

Pauline Rugh Smith, who created a stir last fall when she took over the football coaching reins at Bell town high school, reportedly is thru with the game. Friends of the former Penn State coed, who has since been married to Wenroy Smith, also an alumnus of Penn State, say she will continue teaching but will no longer coach football. Her team failed to win a game in 1943.

Herb. Jones Best Of Young Riders

Herb Jones Out Of West Ranked With Sloane, Sande, Meade

By PAT ROBINSON
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25.—The most popular jockey to come out of the west in many a moon is little Herb Jones, a modest 18-year-old lad from California, who in one short week has already attracted a large following among the punters of the east.

Bill Whisenant, an old time jockey who has been valeting other jockeys for the last 40 years, says Jones has a "sweet pair of hands and the prettiest seat on a horse I've ever seen," and Bill has seen them all from Tod Sloane, Earl Sande, Laverne Fator down to Eddie Arcaro and the present day leaders of the saddle.

"This kid," says Bill, "is going places and within a few years you'll be rating him right along with the best who ever threw a leg over a horse."

Are Better Riders

Herb says he finds the going tougher here than out west. "They're better riders in the east," he explained. "They use their head more than the boys out west. Out there, they're all rough riders and they're liable to knock you right over the fence. Here they do plenty to you and your horse but they do it in such a way you can't find anything to complain about although you know you're getting the works. They pocket you gently here. No rough stuff. If you don't keep your eyes open, first thing you know, somebody's eased you into a nice little pocket and he's going to keep you there."

Herb is essentially a hand finisher but he can use the whip if necessary. He used to stand up when he went to the bat but the older boys quickly showed him the advantage of sticking to his saddle while plying the whip.

Tends To Business

Oh, yes, the old heads are willing to point out many a little detail like this to him but once they're all out on the track together and the chips are down, all friendship ceases and they don't hesitate to give him the business if they can. And that's as it should be.

He was galloping horses for his father, C. S. Curly Jones, when only five years old and at seven he actually was putting race horses over the jumps. He got his first mount in a regular race at Agua Caliente last August 15 on one of C. S. Howard's horses, Civil Code, which he booted home in front.

Unlike many other jockey, he sleeps at the stable and never goes near Broadway which would indicate that the youngster has a head on his shoulders as well as a "sweet pair of hands and the prettiest seat Wisenant has ever seen."

The Machinists climbed on Snyder for 14 hits, with four homers being smacked as follows: Nanny Presas, "Shorty" Bonk and Gabby DeCaprio. Colello had a triple and double for the winners.

Two More Years For Jim Dykes

White Sox Squelch Dismissal Rumors By New Contract

CHICAGO, July 25—(INS)—Persistent reports that Manager Jimmy Dykes was to quit the Chicago White Sox at the end of this season and sign with some other major league club effectually were squelched today by the announcement he had signed for two more years with the Sox.

The scrappy manager now is serving the last year of a three-year contract under which he is reported to receive $27,500 annually. Whether the new contract for 1945 and 1946 ups this amount was not disclosed.

Two More Years

Mrs. Grace Comiskey, White Sox president, made the announcement that Dykes, who already has broken all records for length of service as skipper for the club, had signed to stay on for another two years. Both she and Dykes said they were pleased with the arrangement.

Dykes is in his eleventh year as manager of the Sox, the longest term by far of any Sox manager, as none of predecessors ever had served more than five seasons. Only Connie Mack of the Athletics and Joe McCarthy of the Yankees surpass him as manager of a big league team in respect to successive seasons.

For several weeks there have been repeated reports that Dykes would sign with the Phillies, the Dodgers or the Pirates. Each time Dykes was questioned he denied he even had been approached. He started with the Sox, May 8, 1934, as successor to Lew Fonseca.

Negro Fighter Is Still Unconscious

NEWARK, N. J., July 25.—(INS)—Lem Franklin, Chicago Negro heavyweight, who was knocked out by Larry Lane, Trenton, N. J., last night, was still unconscious and reported on the critical list at City hospital today.

Franklin was winning the fight when in the ninth round Lane landed a stiff punch to the jaw and Franklin fell, striking his head hard on the ring floor.

He was unconscious for an hour but recovered consciousness in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. Later he again lost consciousness. The hospital today said his condition showed a slight improvement.

Sugar Robinson Returns To Ring

PURSE WILL ASSIST SERVICEMEN'S BUDGET

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 25—Probably the greatest welterweight fighter of our time, Sugar Ray Robinson, is coming back to boxing and will appear in a Chicago ring, very likely within two months and not later than three. He also will make appearances in Boston, here at the Garden and probably in Detroit. So much for the bare essentials of the situation. Now for the details:

Robinson, who went into the army some 14 months ago, has received an honorable discharge and is back in civilian life . . . though that fact is known to comparatively few people.

His series of fights, therefore, will serve first to present him with an element of novelty to the American people, and secondly, will divert a good deal of what is known as legal tender into the service men's recreation fund. This fund is to share generously in the receipts of the various Robinson fights listed above.

In addition, the fighter himself has gratuitously offered to donate 20 per cent of his Garden purse to the service men's budget, a contribution that's certain to be no inconsiderable item.

They gang the Garden runways nowadays for a couple of casabas who can't fight their way out of a paper bag. For Robinson's re-entry into boxing, they'll probably pay a gross well over $100,000.

May Fight Frenchman

He may box Marcel Cerdan. Marcel isn't known to any great extent in the middle west but here he's considered quite a fellow, what with Jack Sharkey, the ex-heavyweight champion, doing a race about the guy upon his recent return from an overseas tour of military bases. Cerdan was fighting at the famous Palais D'Sports, operated by the late Jeff Dickson in Paris, before the war. More recently, he won the inter-allied welterweight title behind the lines in Algiers, where Sharkey first saw him.

The Robinson tour will have its premiere in Boston some time early in the fall, probably with Izzy Jannazzo who's strictly from furore with the natives up there.

Robinson perhaps will be tough. And incidentally we've been warned not to imagine that he can't do just about anything he sets his mind to nowadays.

They say, in fact, that what with excellent army food and stern army discipline, plus the Joe Louis tour . . . he's half again the man he was before he went in.

Former Gridiron Star Is Prisoner

Ray Frick, Ex-Penn All-American, Held By Germans, Is Report

PHILADELPHIA, July 25—(INS)—Lt. Ray Frick, former All-American and captain of the University of Pennsylvania's 1940 bi-centenial varsity, is a prisoner of war in Germany, according to word received today from his mother.

Mrs. Frick was notified by the war department that Ray was reported missing on July 9. Later she learned that her son made a forced landing in Germany and was taken prisoner.

Frick was an all-state center at Bloomfield (N. J.) high school and subsequently held down center position on three Penn elevens. Considered one of the best pivot men ever turned out by the Red and Blue, Frick signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers professional football club and then enlisted in the Marines in 1942. Later he transferred to the air corp and went overseas last spring.

STOCK MARKET IS QUIET AND FIRM

Price Changes Small Today, U. S. Steel Scores Modest Gain

NEW YORK, July 25—(INS)—Stocks were quiet and firm today in duller trading. Price changes were small. Steels, motors, rails and some specialties were among the groups to improve.

U. S. Steel scored a modest gain along with Bethlehem. Other steels did little or nothing.

Rails were quiet. However, Atchison gained a point on light transactions. Chicago & Northwestern common and preferred rose fractionally along with New York Central and Southern Pacific.

Rail equipments showed a tendency to rise, led by Pullman and American Car & Foundry.

Motors were listless. Chrysler and General Motors firmed up at the start and then turned dull. Willys Overland held around last night's close.

Pepsi Cola again moved ahead, up nearly a point, on talk of a 3 for 1 split in the next three months.

Oils were quiet. Sinclair, Standard Oil of N. J. and Texas Co. were firm but without much change in price.

Some of the rubbers became active for the first time in weeks, as U. S. Rubber scored a large fractional gain.

Rotarians Hear Prof. C. W. McKee

Westminster College Professor Gives Fine Talk On "America In Reverse"

GIVES TRENDS OF MODERN THINKING

New Castle Rotary club members heard a splendid address by Prof. C. W. McKee, professor of economics at Westminster College, at their noon luncheon meeting in The Castleton, Monday, when he spoke on the subject, "American In Reverse".

Prof. McKee discussed new trends in educatoinal thinking, stating that a new field of organized knowledge is just becoming of age, known as social science, which combines economics and business, political history and social institutions. Leading universities are organizing separate schools in this.

Recognition is being given to the fact that nations and groups of individuals, have the same life cycle as plants. Each nation has a birth, youth, accomplishment, maturity, and death.

Nations in their maturity start slowing down. They begin to cut off and prohibit rather than to become promotive. Freedom of enterprise begins to fade away. Their pioneering spirit begins to wilt. Competition seems to begin to lose its vitality. Then that nation passes rapidly into the stage of decay.

Points Examples

Roughly, he stated, we have a few outstanding examples. Central and South America, he pointed out are in the youth class today. China, although one of the oldest nations is also in this group.

Germany, Italy, and Japan, he classed in the adolescent group, while France, England and the United States, he stated are in the mature group. Russia, he said, is halfway between the youth and adolescent age. It has not yet arrived at the stage of expansion. The balance of the nations, such as Spain, Portugal, which are in the old age stage, and Greece, Rumania, Austria, and Hungary, along with others, have passed through old age stage.

Turning to America, he pointed out she was born in 1776, and until the early part of the 19th century had all the characteristics of a youthful nation. Then from 1803 to 1918, went through a period of pioneering. Since 1918, we have come nearly to the maturity stage. We had ceased to expand geographically, we had almost ceased growing in population. We had almost lost free enterprise. We had more centralized control. We had groups struggling against each other for a larger portion of the pie.

Future Policy

He believed that the future will be determined very largely by the objectives and policies that our nation has as a whole. These can be divided into the groups of agriculture, labor, and economic or banking. These must be organized and improved, if we are to compete with Russia after the war.

Controls he said can be broken down into promotive, prohibitive and mandatory. Unless we turn to promotive control, and shy away from prohibitive and mandatory controls, we are going to lose out in the postwar world, he pointed out in conclusion.

Guests of the club included First Lieut. Jacob Fred Rentz, who has just returned to his home here after completing thirty bombing missions over France and Germany, and Pvt. Richard E. Rentz, of Camp Blanding, Fla., who has just recently completed his basic training in the U. S. Infantry. They are the sons of Jacob F. Rentz, and grandsons of Fred L. Rentz, charter members of the New Castle Rotary club.

Local Educators At State Conference

Four local educators are among the 500 persons attending the 22nd annual superintendents' and principals' conference which opened today at Pennsylvania State college.

Those present from Lawrence county are Clare B. Book, principal of the senior high school; Frank L. Burton, superintendent of public schools; John Syling, superintendent of county schools, and Roy Conway, assistant superintendent of public schools.

War and postwar school problems are the subject of discussion at the three-day conference. Among the speakers are Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis B. Haas and Walter Johnson, political analyst and lecturer at the University of Chicago.

Wednesday Deadline For Questionnaires

At the end of this article there appears a questionnaire which you are asked to fill out and mail or take to the Greater New Castle office in the Castleton Hotel. The information is needed quickly by the war manpower commission and the national housing administration to determine how many men and women Lawrence County will furnish for the expanded war orders received by local industries and also what housing facilities can be furnished for workers who must be imported.

This is not just another questionnaire. It is an urgent request for needed information. The time element prevented a house to house survey organized and the published questionnaire was decided upon. Boy Scouts are passing similar questionnaires in order that no one may be missed.

The questionnaire can be mailed today if you wish. It will appear again in Wednesday's paper. All of them should be returned to the Greater New Castle Association by Wednesday night.

You are urged to co-operate in this quest for information. The questionnaire follows:

Refuse WLB Ruling Tool-Die Men Strike

Arbitrator Rules Men Are Governed By C.I.O. Contract With ALCOA

Disputing the right of the UAW-CIO to represent the workers of the tool and die shop of the Aluminum Company of America's local plant, 115 men have gone on strike following the decision of War Labor Board Arbitrator Dr. John M. Porter in favor of the CIO union.

Dr. Porter's ruling was that the men were members of the UAW, which, as the bargaining agent for the plant, has a contract with the management. Thirty-five workers were therfore dismissed by the management for non-payment of union dues, according to the maintenance of membership clause of the contract.

This strike is a follow-up of one which occurred sevefal weeks ago. At that time the men were ordered back to work by the regional director of the CIO, and by the WLB pending arbitration by the WLB.

The tool and die shop men, not accepting the WLB ruling, claim they should be represented by the International Die Sinkers Conference. The dismissal of the 35 men under the UAW contract therefore brought on this second strike.

The case has been referred back to the War Labor Board.

Refuse To Fight, Generals Urge

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—Sixteen German generals captured by the Russians have issued a signed appeal to all German officers and men to renounce Hitler and bring the war to an end by refusing to fight, an undated item in the London Evening News said today.

The appeal was said to have been printed in Moscow newspaper, broadcast by the Moscow radio and dropped in leaflet form over German-held territory.

Ordinary straight pins are among the scarcest articles in Holland today.

Army's Tire Needs Are Hard To Meet

Plenty Of Synthetic Rubber But Manpower Shortage Causes Concern

NEW YORK, July 25.—(INS)—The picture of the civilian tire situation today, as described by Harvey Firestone Jr., is an abundancy in synthetic rubber but a shortage in manpower.

Firestone, president of the tire and rubber firm bearing his name, said that destruction of railroads in Europe put a heavy burden on trucks and therefore accentuated the demand for large tires. Likewise, success of the B-29 Superfortress in the Pacific and the substantial increase in that production, has added to tire demands.

"The rubber crisis has been licked but the tire crisis has not," he said.

Refuses To Call Sen. Gerald Nye

Judge Hearing Mass Sedition Trial Refuses Subpoena Appeal

By FRANK B. ALLEN
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher refused today to subpoena Sen. Gerald P. Nye (R) N. D., as a defense witness in the mass sedition trial. In announcing his action the judge read a message from the senator saying he had no evidence that "would tend to prove or disprove" the sedition charges.

Peter Koehne, counsel for three defendants, who had asked a subpoena for the senator and alleged documentary evidence he said was in Nye's possession, retorted:

"I demand that the senator make that statement under oath and stand the consequences."

Court Is Warned

He added that Nye "made a speech on the senate floor saying he had such evidence."

Then Koehne challenged the court's refusal to call Nye by saying: "I want to deferentially warn the court it is liable to lose jurisdiction over my clients by this order."

Koehne's motion to call Nye, filed several weeks ago, had asserted that the senator once indicated to him that he had evidence of the defendants' innocence but subsequently he was "out" or "busy" when Koehne attempted to discuss it further with him.

Disputing the right of the UAW-CIO to represent the workers of the tool and die shop of the Aluminum Company of America's local plant, 115 men have gone on strike following the decision of War Labor Board Arbitrator Dr. John M. Porter in favor of the CIO union.

Dr. Porter's ruling was that the men were members of the UAW which, as the bargaining agent for the plant, has a contract with the management. Thirty-five workers were therfore dismissed by the management for non-payment of union dues, according to the maintenance of membership clause of the contract.

This strike is a follow-up of one which occurred several weeks ago. At that time the men were ordered back to work by the regional director of the CIO, and by the WLB, pending arbitration by the WLB.

The tool and die shop men, not accepting the WLB ruling, claim they should be represented by the International Die Sinkers Conference. The dismissal of the 35 men under the UAW contract therefore brought on this second strike.

The case has been referred back to the War Labor Board.

Refuse To Fight, Generals Urge

LONDON, July 25.—(INS)—Sixteen German generals captured by the Russians have issued a signed appeal to all German officers and men to renounce Hitler and bring the war to an end by refusing to fight, an undated item in the London Evening News said today.

The appeal was said to have been printed in Moscow newspaper, broadcast by the Moscow radio and dropped in leaflet form over German-held territory.

Ordinary straight pins are among the scarcest articles in Holland today.

Plenty Of Synthetic Rubber But Manpower Shortage Causes Concern

NEW YORK, July 25.—(INS)—The picture of the civilian tire situation today, as described by Harvey Firestone Jr., is an abundancy in synthetic rubber but a shortage in manpower.

Firestone, president of the tire and rubber firm bearing his name, said that destruction of railroads in Europe put a heavy burden on trucks and therefore accentuated the demand for large tires. Likewise, success of the B-29 Superfortress in the Pacific and the substantial increase in that production, has added to tire demands.

"The rubber crisis has been licked but the tire crisis has not," he said.

Refuses To Call Sen. Gerald Nye

By FRANK B. ALLEN
(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher refused today to subpoena Sen. Gerald P. Nye (R) N. D., as a defense witness in the mass sedition trial. In announcing his action the judge read a message from the senator saying he had no evidence that "would tend to prove or disprove" the sedition charges.

Jesse Koehne, counsel for three defendants, who had asked a subpoena for the senator and alleged documentary evidence he said was in Nye's possession, retorted:

"I demand that the senator make that statement under oath and stand the consequences."

Court Is Warned

He added that Nye "made a speech on the senate floor saying he had such evidence."

Then Koehne challenged the court's refusal to call Nye by saying:

"I want to deferentially warn the court it is liable to lose jurisdiction over my clients by this order."

Koehne's motion to call Nye, filed several weeks ago, had asserted that the senator once indicated to him that he had evidence of the defendants' innocence but subsequently he was "out" or "busy" when Koehne attempted to discuss it further with him.
